Gifts worthy of mention were received from: Willard Parker Butler, twenty-five volumes and twenty-six pamphlets, including programmes of Mlle. Jenny Lind's New York concerts in 1850 and 1851, no. 1 of "The Lorgnette, or studies of the town by an opera goer," January 20, 1850, etc.; John L. Cadwalader, two Grolier Club publications, "The scarlet letter," by Nathaniel Hawthorne, illustrated by George H. Boughton, New York, 1908, and "Catalogue of original and early editions of some of the poetical and prose works of English writers from Wither to Prior, with collations, notes and more than two hundred facsimiles of title-pages and frontispieces," 3 volumes, New York, 1905; J. D. Cord, thirty-five volumes and 127 pamphlets, trade and manufacturers' catalogues; Earl of Crawford, volumes 5 and 6 of the "Bibliotheca Lindesiana, A bibliography of royal proclamations of the Tudor and Stuart sovereigns and of others published under authority, 1485-1714, with an historical essay on their origin and use by Robert Steele," 2 volumes, Oxford, 1910; George Francis Dow, a copy of "An inventory of the contents of the shop and house of Captain George Corwin of Salem, Massachusetts Bay, who died January 3, 1684-5," with a short introductory note by George Francis Dow, Salem, December, 1910; T. W. Edmondson, "Nidderdale; An historical . . . sketch of the valley of the Nidderdale," by William Grainge, Pateley Bridge, 1863; Préfet de la Seine, twenty volumes and two pamphlets; Henry M. Goldfogle, 298 volumes and sixteen pamphlets, government documents; Herbert Foster Gunnison, a copy of "An autobiography of the Rev. Nathaniel Gunnison, with extracts from his diaries . . . with a sketch of his wife, Ann Louisa Foster," 2d edition, Brooklyn, 1910; the Patent department of India, four volumes and thirteen pamphlets, "Inventions and designs," 1907-1910, "Inventions Subject-matter index 1900-1908," etc.; Mrs. Morris K. Jesup, a copy of William Adams Brown's "Morris Ketchum Jesup; a character sketch," New York, 1910; Madame Thérèse Lefuel, "Allocutions et discours," par Eugène Guillaume, and "Notices et discours: Charles Blanc, Paul Baudry . . ." par Eugène Guillaume, both printed at Paris; Johnston Livingston, "The Livingstons of Callendar and their principal cadets, a family history," by Edwin Brockholst Livingston, privately printed at Edinburgh in 1887, 2 volumes; James H. Millard, ten volumes and two pamphlets, two sets of the Proceedings and the Final report of the "Commission to inquire into the courts of inferior criminal jurisdiction in cities of the first class," printed at Albany; 1909-10; the Spanish Museo y Biblioteca de Ingenieros, the printed account of "Noticias sobre el servicio de informacion bibliografica establecido en la biblioteca de ingenieros del ejercito," written by Captain D. Leopoldo Giménez, Madrid, 1909; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stoeckel, a copy of "Baptisms, marriages, burials and list of members taken from the church records of the Reverend Ammi Ruhamah Robbins, first minister of Norfolk, Conn., 1761-1813 . . . [New York], 1910; Horace White, three volumes and one pamphlet, the Report of the British Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the recent changes in the relative values of the precious metals, 1887-1888, etc.; and P. A. B. Widener, " 'Le livre du Chastel de Labour,' par Jean Bruyant; a description of an illuminated manuscript of the fifteenth century, belonging to P. A. B. Widener . . . with a short account and synopsis of the poem," privately printed at Philadelphia in 1909.

At the LENOX branch the cartoons relating to the American Revolution remained on view in the print gallery until a day or two before the end of the month, when they were removed to give place to an exhibition of "Paris in etching," to open in January, and to be noted in the report of that month. The J. D. Smillie memorial exhibit was on exhibition in the lower hall until December 22d, when it gave way to the publications of the Dürer Society.

At the ASTOR branch reproductions of paintings by Vasnetzov, and plates from C. Hofstede de Groot's work on Vermeer and Fabritius were on view.

Pásztor Árpad, the Hungarian poet and journalist, visiting this country in an official capacity, gave a lecture December 15, 1910, at the HAMILTON FISH PARK branch on modern Hungarian literature, and read one of his letters from San Francisco about to be sent to a Hungarian paper, and three poems inspired by his trip across the ocean.

On December 28, 1910, a lecture was given at the HUDSON PARK branch by Rev. Joseph McSorley on "Messina and Reggio." The lecture was illustrated by stereopticon, and there was incidental music. About 200 attended.

A large corps of "Boy Scouts" has recently been organized in the neighborhood of the HAMILTON FISH PARK branch by The Educational Alliance. The boys, about 70 in number, use the assembly room of the branch for their meetings, which are held twice a month.

During the Christmas season there was exhibited in the reading-room of the 58TH STREET branch a series of pictures illustrating Christmas customs and modes of celebration from the fourth century to the present day. Short explanatory notes were added below each picture. The series commenced with the origin of Christmas observances, and included illustrations showing present day customs in ten countries—England, America, Russia, Italy, Poland, Servia, Holland, Brittany, France, and Siam.

Nazeby Harrington, a copy of his compilation "The engraved work of Sir Francis Seymour Haden, P.R.E., an illustrated and descriptive catalogue," Liverpool, 1910; Axel Hellrung, five volumes, "Ludvig Holbergs udvalgte skrifter," Del 1-6, Kjöbenhavn, 1804-1806; Jerome Internoscia, a copy of his "New code of international law," first edition, New York, 1910, (printed in English, French, and Italian); H. C. Levis, one pamphlet, "Title-pages of the two earliest books in the English language relating to engraving also the pages therein which contain the sections on engraving and the title-page of another edition of the first of these books," London, 1911; José F. Ferreira Martins, "Historia da Misericordia de Goa (1520-1620)" by himself, volume 1, Nova Goa, 1910; New York City Comptroller, 1,703 volumes and 151 pamphlets, New York State, city, and other documents;

William Jones Seabury, a copy of his "Memoir of Bishop Seabury," New York, 1908; the Smithsonian Institution, 2,654 volumes and 2,856 pamphlets, a miscellaneous collection of documents, etc.; L. Solon, three pamphlets, "Léon Arnoux 1816-1902," "Porcelain," by L. Solon, "Bernard Palissy and his time," by L. Solon (1908-09); William Wade, six volumes of Waldie's "Select circulating library," Philadelphia, printed by Adam Waldie, 1833 part 2, 1834 parts 1-2, 1836 part 1, 1837 parts 1-2; and from W. D. Westervelt a copy of his "Legends of Ma-ui, a demi-god of Polynesia and of his mother Hina," Honolulu, 1910.

At the Lenox branch the year was begun with an exhibition of "Paris in etching," the material for which, with few exceptions, was drawn from the S. P. Avery collection. Meryon's absolutely individual pictures of streets and buildings as they appeared before the leveling activity of Baron Haussmann hold first place. Buhot, Guerard, Bracquemond show various aspects of the city, each through his own temperament. The architectural effect is prominent in the works of Brunet-Debaines, Jacquemart, Toussaint, Delauney. Human and local interest are combined in those of Flameng, Lepère (a colored wood engraving by whom is also shown), T. F. Simon (whose plates are mostly in color), Raffaeli and the American, Lester G. Hornby. Other noteworthy plates by Americans are by E. L. Warner and H. H. Osgood. Whistler's Paris plates are shown as a matter of course. Further notes of interest are added by a seventeenth century view of the Pont Neuf by Callot, the facile mastery of Lalanne, A. P. Martial's war-time pictures, and plates by Béjot, Laing and Slocombe. In the lower hall, plates from the Dürer Society's publications have been on view.

At the Astor branch plates from Hofstede de Groot's work on Vermeer and Fabritius, and reproductions of drawings by old masters in the print room of the Royal Museum in Berlin were shown.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR

For the Year ending December 31, 1910.

January 3, 1911.

Hon. John Bigelow,
President of The New York Public Library.

Sir:

I have the honor to submit the following report of the work of the Library for the year 1910:

General Summary.

The current activity of the Library is shown in the following summary:

In the reference branches during 1910 readers and visitors numbered 232,506; 163,810 desk applicants consulted 658,840 volumes (corresponding figures for 1909 being 194,091 desk applicants and 776,703 volumes). 36,818 volumes and 74,738 pamphlets were received; 31,934 volumes and 5,676 pamphlets were accessioned, making the total number available for readers 809,878 volumes and 300,754 pamphlets, an aggregate of 1,110,632 pieces in the reference department, which with the 809,350 volumes in the circulation department give a total of 1,919,982 pieces in the whole library. The print department now contains 72,980 prints; there has been little increase in the music, map or manuscript departments. There were catalogued 54,846 volumes and 42,395 pamphlets; the public catalogues in the Astor and Lenox reading rooms contain now 1,674,705 cards; the official author catalogues at these two buildings contain now 1,218,985 cards. 1,997 periodicals have been indexed number by number, for which 17,241 cards or printer's slips were written. Periodicals currently received amount to 7,021, if counted by titles, or 175,958 counted by individual pieces; readers of current periodicals at the Astor branch numbered 41,479, and these readers called for 245,042 single pieces or numbers.

In the circulation department, the number of branches remains at 40. The record of volumes in the department has increased from 755,406 to 809,350, circulation for home use from 7,013,649 to 7,506,976.

The total expenditures for the calendar year 1910 were $872,835.52 of which $216,150.42 was spent for the reference department and $656,685.10 for the circulation department.

Of the reference department expenditures $50,693.14, or 23.4 per cent., went for books, binding, and periodicals; $134,077.60, or 62 per cent., for salaries; $31,379.68, or 14.5 per cent., for all other purposes.

Of the circulation department expenditures $175,448.88, or 26.7 per cent., went for books, binding and periodicals; $346,638.86, or 52.7 per cent., went for salaries; $134,597.36, or 20.4 per cent., for all other purposes.

Of the circulation department expenditures, $618,452.15 came from the city appropriation.

There are now 732 persons on the staff of the Library, 227 in the reference department, 505 in the circulation department.

Of the reference department staff the number of librarians, assistants, etc., was 180; the number of janitors, pages, etc., was 47.

Of the circulation department staff the number of librarians, assistants, etc., was 451; the number of janitors, pages, etc., was 54.

REFERENCE DEPARTMENT.

New Building.

One new contract has been let during the year, that for the furniture and equipment, and work on the other contracts has progressed with satisfactory results.

The present condition of the individual contracts is as follows:

Contract No. 4: Book Stacks. All the stack work is complete, with the exception of a few finishing touches, such as the setting of some marble work in the stack room, steps to a few galleries in the special reading rooms, etc. Shelves have been delivered and set in place throughout the entire building.

Contract No. 5: Heating and Ventilating. At the end of last year all the duct work had been completed, most of the face registers set, and all third-floor radiators installed. This year has seen the completion of setting of all radiators, thermostats, and register faces, as well as completion of the air filter room and the fans and motors for the blowers.

The boilers are in use at the present time. With a few exceptions, the steam and return pipes and ducts have been covered and painted.

Contract No. 6: Plumbing. This contract was near completion last year. It has now been finished with the installation of toilet room accessories, fire hose nozzles, testing of pumps, etc.

Contract No. 7: Interior Finish. At the end of the year 1909 most of the cabinet work was in place and completed to the first and second stories. During the early part of the year practically all of this work was completed, with the exception of placing door checks and holders. There remains little more on this contract than the finishing of a few odds and ends.

Contract No. 8: Electrical Work. This contract is nearing completion; most wires have been pulled, switchplates to inter-communicating telephones and book conveyors set, and the book conveyor equipment installed, with the exception of the pneumatic tube carriers. Passenger elevators have also been completed, with the exception of their annunciators. Little remains unfinished except miscellaneous minor details.

Contract No. 9: Approaches. During the year all the approaches have been completed, including the sidewalks on Fortieth and Forty-second streets and Fifth avenue, planting of grass and sixty-eight linden trees. The two public comfort stations are nearing completion, little remaining to be done but installation of a few electrical appliances.

The canopy for the Bryant monument facing Bryant Park has been completed, and the lions for the Fifth avenue steps are being carved from the approved models.

The fountain in the south court has been erected, and wood paving has been installed in this court and the driveway.

Contract No. 10: Electric Power Plant. All the engines and dynamos have been delivered and erected under this contract, and tile work, crane, storage battery, and oiling system are completed. A temporary switchboard was installed early in December, by means of which, and one of the small engines, we have made sufficient electricity for the use of our printing office. The other engines are being adjusted and the switchboard is in process of erection. The oiling and engine stop system and storage batteries are nearly completed, and work on this contract should be finished during the present month.

Contract No. 11: Furniture and Equipment. The last report told of the bids for this contract, which had been opened on November 18, 1909, but, before acceptance, had been thrown out because of a protest filed with the Park department by the Lanston Monotype Company; and how, after re-advertisement, bids had been opened a second time on December 30. Because of the incoming of a new Board of Estimate and Apportionment the matter of awarding the contract went over until May 12, 1910, when it was finally let to the Cobb Construction Company at its bid of $543,750. Work on the contract was begun at once, and at the present time all drawings have been approved and all sub-contracts let. Work on the furniture, tables, desks, etc., is well under way in the factories, and about one-half the electrical fixtures have been delivered and put in place. Much of the miscellaneous work in connection with this contract has been finished, such as the plaster and metal lath in various rooms, concrete foundation for the flagpoles, bronze screens to radiators on the third floor, snow guards on the roof, label holders, exterior bulletin boards, the bronze corner protectors, bronze gates and grilles, hose recess doors, etc.

Machine tools for the machine shop have all been delivered and erected, though they still lack adjustment and electrical connections.

Practically all the machinery and equipment of the printing office has been delivered, with the exception of the cabinet work. The four linotypes are in place and have been running since about the middle of December. All the presses, folders, cutters, and similar machinery for the press room have been delivered and erected. We have been using one of the two small presses for the printing of catalogue cards. Though the work in the printing office has been carried on under difficulties, we have set in these two weeks 225 titles, from which 1,596 cards have been printed.

The present indications are that the work on this Contract No. 11 will be finished about on contract time, which will mean that the Library can be opened to the public in May, 1911, or soon afterwards.

Readers' Department.

C. H. A. Bjerregaard, Chief.

During the calendar year 1910 the number of readers and visitors entering the two reference branches was 232,506, of which 190,290 were recorded at Astor and 42,216 at Lenox. The daily average was 609 at Astor and 136.1 at Lenox. In 1909 the figures were 209,996 at Astor and 55,916 at Lenox, a total of 265,912, a daily average of 677.4 at Astor and 180 at Lenox.

The number of desk applicants during the period was 163,810, of which 149,943 were recorded at Astor and 13,867 at Lenox. This was a decrease of 30,281 (28,803 at Astor, 1,478 at Lenox) from 1909, or 15 per cent. The daily average was 528.4 desk applicants (483.6 at Astor, 44.7 at Lenox).

The number of volumes consulted by these 163,810 desk applicants was 658,840, of which 581,335 were called for at Astor and 77,505 at Lenox. The daily average (310 days) was 2,125.2 volumes (1,875.2 at Astor, 250 at Lenox).

The above figures take no account of the volumes consulted by readers using the open reference shelves; these readers number about 5,000 per month at Astor and 1,000 at Lenox, and the count of volumes thus consulted would probably be at the rate of five, more or less, per reader.

The decrease of 30,281 desk applicants (15 per cent.) represents a loss of 24,506 at Astor during the day (9 a.m. to 6 p.m.) or 12 per cent. of the total; a loss of 4,297 at Astor during the evening (6 to 9 p.m.) or 2.2 per cent. of the total; a total loss at Astor of 28,803, or 14 per cent. of the total; a loss of 1,478 at Lenox (9 a.m. to 6 p.m.), or .76 per cent. of the total.

The totals, monthly and daily averages, and average number of volumes called for per reader are shown in the following table:

| | | DESK APPLICANTS 1909 | DESK APPLICANTS 1910 | VOLUMES CONSULTED 1909 | VOLUMES CONSULTED 1910 |

Of the total number of volumes called for at ASTOR 149,876, or 25.7 per cent., belonged to European history, etc.; 64,203, or 11 per cent., to American and English literature; 57,100, or 9.8 per cent., to law, economics, sociology, etc.; 51,788, or 8.8 per cent., to applied science; 39,661, or 6.8 per cent., to art, archæology, etc.; 29,293, or 5 per cent., to science; 27,056, or 4.6 per cent., to general works.

Of the total number of volumes called for at LENOX, 45,747, or 59 per cent., belonged to American genealogies and local histories; 8,431, or 10.8 per cent., to American history; 5,218, or 6.7 per cent., to law, economics and sociology; 2,698 or 3.4 per cent., to English and American literature.

Of the total number of desk applicants, ASTOR day service amounted to 74.2 per cent., ASTOR evening service to 17.2 per cent., LENOX, 8.46 per cent. (In 1909 ASTOR day service amounted to 75.7 per cent., evening service to 16.8 per cent., LENOX, to 7.8 per cent.)

Of the total number of desk applicants at ASTOR the day service represented 81 per cent., and the evening service 18.9 per cent.

Of the total number of volumes consulted, ASTOR day service amounted to 76.7 per cent., ASTOR evening service to 11.4 per cent., and LENOX to 11.7 per cent.

At LENOX the largest number of readers and visitors recorded in any one month was 5,467 in March; the smallest in any one month was 2,322 in July; the largest in any one day was 285, on March 5, and the smallest was 45, on November 3.

The largest number of desk applicants in any one month at LENOX was 1,638,in March, when 9,716 volumes were consulted; the smallest in any one month was 912, in September, 5,149 volumes being called for; the largest in any one day was 90, on March 5, the number of volumes consulted being 574; the smallest on any one day was 19, on June 30, the number of volumes consulted being 80.

At ASTOR the largest number of desk applicants for any one month was recorded in January, when 16,684 readers (13,826 by day, 2,858 by night) called for 53,904 volumes (47,139 day, 6,765 night).

The smallest number for any one month was in July, when 8,674 readers (7,073 day, 1,601 night) called for 31,503 volumes (27,124 day, 4,379 night).

The largest number for any one day was on February 26, when 831 readers (709 day, 122 night) called for 3,303 volumes 2,947 day, 356 night).

The smallest number for any one day was on September 5, when 236 readers (189 day, 47 night) called for 908 volumes (726 day, 182 night).

Table I, appended, records the number of classes of volumes consulted at ASTOR and LENOX, the number of readers and visitors, etc., for the calendar year 1910.

SHELF DEPARTMENT.

E. R. PERRY, Chief.

The number of volumes received at the Library during 1910 was 36,818, of which 14,252 were purchases, 20,586 gifts, and 1,980 exchanges.

The number of pamphlets received during the same period was 74,738, of which 7,583 were purchases, 42,655 gifts, and 24,500 exchanges.

The number of volumes accessioned during the calendar year 1910 was 31,934, of pamphlets 5,676. Of this number 16,024 volumes and 1,199 pamphlets were purchased or were received on exchange account, and 15,910 volumes and 4,477 pamphlets were gifts.

Included in this record of volumes are 990 so-called "pamphlet volumes" made by binding together in single volumes 778 unbound volumes and 13,995 pamphlets, grouped so as to bring together a sufficient number of pieces to make volumes of about two inches in thickness, each relating to a single subject.

The total number of volumes recorded as available for readers on December 31, 1910, was 809,878, and of pamphlets 300,754, an aggregate of 1,110,632 pieces in the reference department. (From this figure should be deducted temporarily the 83,651 volumes and pamphlets boxed and stored in the cellar for lack of room.)

Reclassification during the year 1910 amounted to 3,322 volumes and 1,156 pamphlets, and included a number of new groups, such as heraldry, the Milton and Shakespeare collections (the latter still unfinished), translations from Slavonic literature, and various minor groups.

The subject index to our classification scheme has been finished so far as the indexing of subject groups is concerned; the comparison of these classification groups with the subject headings in the index catalogue at ASTOR has been finished as well, and work is now progressing on the comparison and revision of the subject headings at LENOX.

During 1910 outside binders bound 13,440 volumes and pamphlets; of this number 8,702 pieces were newly bound and 4,738 repaired. This record does not include about 1,000 volumes bound abroad before importation.

At the ASTOR branch 874 volumes and pamphlets were rebound or repaired in the bindery in the building, and 3,933 volumes and pamphlets needing slight repairing were cared for without sending to the bindery.

The number of volumes done up in manila paper at ASTOR was 9,578, and the number of volumes lettered was 17,707.

Crowded shelves and pressure of new accessions required the shifting of 6,808 shelves (between three and four miles) of books.

A shelf list has been begun by running off an extra card for each work catalogued during the year and arranging these cards according to classification marks.

EXCHANGES.

Receipts on duplicate exchange account during 1910 were 1,980 volumes and 24,500 pamphlets; volumes sent out amounted to 4,472 and pamphlets to 12,366.

CATALOGUE DEPARTMENT.

AXEL MOTH, Chief.

During the calendar year 1910 the number of volumes newly catalogued was 20,155, of pamphlets 21,362, and of maps 149. In addition the cataloguing of 1,694 volumes and 1,174 pamphlets was continued or completed by additions to, or corrections of, entries already made. The number of volumes recatalogued for one reason or another was 5,648 and of pamphlets 1,143.

The number of serials, magazines, journals, etc., newly catalogued was 10,779, of which 3,253 were volumes and 7,526 pamphlets. In addition 12,369 volumes of serials and 10,129 pamphlets were catalogued by changing existing entries. 1,727 volumes of serials and 1,061 pamphlets were recatalogued.

The total number of volumes handled by the department was 44,846, of pamphlets 42,395, and of maps 149, making an aggregate of 87,390.

For the pieces above mentioned were written 69,202 cards for the various catalogues and 48,474 copy-slips for the duplicating machine. From this machine were run off 396,924 cards for filing, of which number 24,404 were sent to the Library of Congress. The number of cards that had entries changed in the process of recording new additions to works already on our shelves was 24,667.

The public index catalogue at ASTOR contains 1,287,965 cards. The official author catalogues contain 1,072,536 cards (general catalogue 634,-760, serials 93,864, railways 6,049, documents 177,366, reports 27,307, Hebrew 61,600, Oriental 46,640, Russian 24,950).

The public catalogues at LENOX contain 386,740 cards (south hall 251,-460, genealogies and local history 53,680, music 81,600). The official author catalogues contain 146,449 cards (incunabula 3,400, Americana 43,000, manuscripts 28,200, maps 26,200, prints 45,649).

The two public catalogues thus contain 1,674,705, the official author catalogues in the two buildings contain 1,218,985 cards, a total of 2,893,680.

In the new building we shall need special catalogues for the collections in the various special reading rooms for American history, economics and sociology, science, technology, art, music, etc. These collections are all represented in the general public index catalogue by author and subject cards; to provide for their special catalogues we have had seven typewriters at work for the last few months copying cards for the groups of American local history and genealogy, science and art. 31,503 cards copied in this way have been multiplied on the duplicating machine to about 135,000.

Preparatory to discontinuing the use of the two printed catalogues of the ASTOR Library (issued in 1860 and 1880), we have cut up two sets of each during the year, and mounted the entries on cards to serve as author records. Over ten years ago a similar set of cards was filed in the index catalogue to serve as subject cards; when the set of author cards is combined with the subject cards readers will find a complete card record for all books and will be spared the necessity of supplementing the card catalogue by reference to the printed book catalogues.

The printing plant in the new building was sufficiently equipped by the middle of December to begin printing catalogue cards. During the month the cataloguing force furnished 1,717 copy slips from which 225 titles were set and 1,596 cards printed. These entries are set to a measure of 27 ems pica, the author entry being an 11-point antique face, the title matter 11-point old style, the notes in 8-point old style.

Periodicals Department.

Miss M. R. Day, Miss G. P. Hill, Chiefs.

For the calendar year 1910 the number of readers filling out application blanks for current periodicals at Astor was 41,479; of periodicals consulted by them 245,042; this was a decrease of 306 readers and of 19,215 periodicals.

The daily average was 133 readers (101 day, 32 evening) and 790 periodicals (621 day, 169 evening); last year the average number of readers was 134, and of periodicals consulted 852.

The number of individual titles of current periodicals called for during 1910 was 70,939 (day 54,069, evening 16,870), as compared with 71,386 during 1909 (56,073 day, 15,313 evening), this count disregarding the number of individual issues called for or given out.

The distribution of these 70,939 titles called for in 1910 is as follows:

General, 8,465; art, archæology, architecture, etc., 8,680; English and American literature, 7,571; foreign literature, 3,305; science, 1,952; useful arts, 21,425; law, economics, sociology, education, etc., 11,760; religion and philosophy, 2091; orientalia, 117; Judaica, 245; newspapers, 4,708; natural history, 128.

The library receives at this date 7,021 current periodicals, of which 4,073 are purchases, 2,675 are gifts, and 273 exchanges for the Bulletin. 139 of this total are daily papers, 959 weeklies, 233 semi-monthlies, 2,099 monthlies, 227 bi-monthlies, 805 quarterlies, 91 semi-annuals, 730 are annuals received by purchase, 1,488 of irregular periods of publication.

These 7,021 current periodicals represent a gross increase of 650 new titles, less a loss of 291 titles discontinued for various reasons, making a net increase of 359 over the 6,662 reported in 1909.

In addition should be noted 9,985 annual publications received by gift, and 440 in exchange for the Bulletin.

The total number of separate pieces of periodicals received during the year was 175,958, being a daily average of 568; these figures include quarterlies, monthlies, dailies, etc., but do not include annuals.

In exchange for the Bulletin the Library receives a total of 713 periodicals, 289 of which are American annual publications, 151 are foreign annuals, and 273 American and foreign periodicals of greater frequency of publication than annual.

475 volumes of old periodicals were added during the year, completing important files.

Table II appended gives in detail a record of our current periodicals.

Indexing of 1,997 current periodicals (i. e., 1,997 different titles) is carried on (1,870 being done at Astor, and 127 at Lenox); of the Astor titles 25 are done for the American Library Association coöperative indexing.

For this indexing we wrote in the catalogue room 16,497 cards, made additions to 2,457 cards already written, and furnished 744 copy slips for the American Library Association coöperative indexing.

From the publishing section of the A. L. A. we received 3,496 printed cards, representing the indexing of 218 periodicals done jointly by this Library, the Boston Public Library, John Crerar Library, and Harvard and Columbia University libraries.

Herewith is presented a table showing the number of periodicals received in various subjects, the number purchased and the subscription cost, and the number received as gifts:

| | COST PER ANNUM | PURCHASES | GIFTS AND EXCHANGES | TOTAL |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Aeronautics | $31.27 | 16 | 3 | 19 |
| Agriculture | 98.80 | 33 | 86 | 119 |
| Anthropology | 100.20 | 33 | 3 | 36 |
| Archaeology | 514.79 | 185 | 13 | 198 |
| Architecture | 125.15 | 37 | 6 | 43 |

Documents Department.

Miss A. R. Hasse, Chief.

During 1910 the documents department received 7,861 volumes, 5,873 pamphlets, and 544 maps. It catalogued 6,103 volumes and 9,395 pamphlets. For this cataloguing 24,116 cards were written, and 670 slips for the copying machine, these latter being multiplied on the machine to 24,715 cards,

During the year a modification of our practice of noting additions to serial documents on the cards in the public catalogue has been adopted. Formerly it was necessary on receipt of a new volume in a series of documents to change the serial number and the date on the public catalogue card. The time entailed in this constant changing of cards led us to give up attempting to keep a detailed record of serial documents on our public cards, substituting therefor an entry reading somewhat as follows: "v. 1 —— date," which practice had the advantage of requiring no changes as new volumes came in, and the disadvantage of failing to inform the reader or the desk attendant exactly which volumes were available for consultation. The new arrangement consists of a series of duplicate cards for the public catalogue, each of which in the beginning contains a complete statement of the file of a given serial document, one being filed in the public catalogue and the other retained by the Documents department; when a new volume is received entry is made for it by the Documents department on the one of the duplicate cards in its possession, which card is at once filed in the public catalogue, the corresponding duplicate card being withdrawn and returned to the Documents department. The arrangement so far has worked with satisfaction for desk attendants and for readers, both of whom are grateful for the precise information thus given for serial document files.

We have paid more than usual attention also to embodying in the public catalogue a record of the contents of series and collections that ordinarily are represented only by a single entry. As an example may be cited the annual series of the British diplomatic and consular reports; a single entry for this valuable series is of little use other than as a check list for the librarian, or a confirmatory memorandum for that infrequent reader who knows just how to search for what he wants. As a matter of fact, the series comprises recurring detailed reports on the economic, industrial, and social progress of the territory composing British consular districts over the entire world. Sometimes these recurring reports are confined to a special subject, as, for instance, the Russian budget, which is annually set out with much fullness. The series cited is better known than some others subjected to the same treatment, which, if we are able to keep it up, must eventually result in considerably enriching the public catalogue.

During the past year the large body of foreign statistics in the Library has been closely analyzed in the above described manner. It has been estimated (Mitteilungen des Bernischen statistischen Bureaus, Jahrgang 1909, page 53) that there are in the world in active operation 413 statistical bureaus, viz., 242 federal and state, and 171 municipal bureaus. The Bern estimate is based on Platzer's "Jahrbuch der Statistik." In comparison with these figures it is interesting to note that our files contain reports of 207 federal and state bureaus and 101 municipal bureaus noted by Platzer, in addition to several, particularly South American, not there recorded.

In general the additions to the document collection during the year have been selective rather than promiscuous, and have followed the lines indicated in last year's report. One important addition may be mentioned, namely a complete collection of the Lourenço Marquez arbitration proceedings, of which competent authority says there are few, if any other, copies in this country.

Oriental Department.

Dr. Richard Gottheil, Chief.

The catalogue of the department now contains 46,640 cards. For current catalogue work were written 7,025 cards, and additions were made to 609 cards already written. Accessions amounted to 418 pieces, giving a total of 13,544 pieces in the department.

In addition to the routine work we finished this year the recataloguing of all Oriental works included in the "Cogswell" catalogue of the ASTOR Library (1860). We have finished also the cataloguing of our Sanskrit material and have carried our indexing of the "Journal Asiatique" through the first five series (81 volumes between 1822 and 1862).

HEBREW DEPARTMENT.

A. S. FREIDUS, Chief.

The number of volumes and pamphlets credited to the department is now about 17,000. The chief of the department reports that the readers number about 35 per day and call for about 95 volumes. The special catalogue of the collection contains about 61,600 cards.

In the cataloguing and analyzing of the Hebrew works according to authors and titles, we follow to a large extent the examples of the masters of Jewish bibliography (Benjacob, Fürst, Roest, Steinschneider, Wiener, Zedner, Zeitlin, etc.) in their works. Our subject cataloguing and analyzing according to the dictionary plan, in conformity with our general Index-catalogue, is, on the other hand, a rather novel, but none the less useful treatment of this literature.

Portions of the catalogue have been published from time to time in the BULLETIN of the Library, namely: "Check list of works relating to the synagogues of the city of New York" (v. 5, 1901, p. 198-200); "List of Jewish periodicals" (v. 6, 1902, p. 258-264); "Anti-Semitic and Jewish-Christian periodicals" (v. 7, 1903, p. 30-31); "Jewish Almanacs" (ibid. p. 263-265); "Jewish Calendar" (ibid. p. 296-301); "Jewish marriage and divorce" (v. 9, 1905, p. 505-506); "Jewish Women" (ibid. p. 580-581); "List of dramas relating to the Jews, and of dramas in Hebrew, Judeo-Spanish, and Judeo-German; together with essays on the Jewish stage" (v. 11, 1907, p. 18-51); "Jewish folk-songs" (ibid. p. 212-213); "List of grammars, dictionaries, etc., of the Aramaic language" (v. 13, 1909, p. 335-341); "Grammars, dictionaries, etc., of the Hebrew language" (ibid. p. 360-378); "Grammars, dictionaries, etc., of the Samaritan language" (ibid. p. 430-432).

As of interest to Jewish scholars we may also mention here the Hebrew and Samaritan Biblical manuscripts (v. 5, 1901, p. 334); the Tissot collection of Old Testament paintings, presented to the Library by Mr. Jacob H. Schiff (see his letter in v. 13, 1909, p. 255-256); and the list on Baruch Spinoza and Spinozism (v. 12, 1908, p. 507-510).

An elaborate scheme of classification for Jewish books, containing about 500 subdivisions, has been specially worked out for this department and printed in 1901. It has been reproduced in the "Jewish Encyclopedia," v. 8 (1904), art. Libraries. It was adopted by several workers in the same field. One librarian had all the subject headings and cross-references of the special catalogue copied for use in his library.

Since the organization of this department in 1897, reference work has been a feature receiving our special attention. Numerous students have availed themselves of the opportunities thus offered, so that this deparment has become one of the most frequented Jewish libraries in the world. Especially worthy of mention in this connection are the editors and local workers of the staff of the Jewish Encyclopedia, who worked here during the years 1898-1906. We are also frequently called on by out-of-town students to answer questions by mail. As a rule all references given to visitors and correspondents are at the same time incorporated in our own index-catalogue, if they are not already there. In this way the reference and cataloguing work are mutually helpful; the former continually supplementing the latter. Any information once used in the course of the work of the department is not allowed to be lost, but is entered in its proper place in the catalogue, to be available for future reference.

Slavonic Department.

Herman Rosenthal, Chief.

For the year 1910 additions to the Slavonic department amounted to 827 volumes and 318 pamphlets, bringing the total record of pieces in the department to 13,274.

Volumes catalogued amounted to 877, pamphlets to 308, articles indexed to 500. For this work were written 4,419 cards and 739 slips for the copying machine; additions were made to entries on 426 cards already written. The number of cards in the catalogue on December 31, 1910, was 24,950.

The number of readers recorded was 9,948 by day and 2,116 at night, making a total of 12,064 (compared with 18,276 in 1909). The average per month was 1,005 (1,523 in 1909), 829 day readers and 176 at night.

These 12,064 readers called for 19,285 volumes.

The most important additions to the collection consisted of the collected works of Andreyev and Verbitzkaya, Russian editions of Shakespeare, Hamsun, Hauptmann, and Sudermann, about fifty volumes of Russian historical works by such authors as Klynchevski, Platonov, Kovalevski, and some two hundred Lettish dramas, works of poetry, fiction, etc.

Print Department.

Frank Weitenkampf, Chief.

During 1910 accessions amounted to 2,663 pieces. The total number of prints thus recorded is now 72,980 (54,280 in the general collection, 18,700 in the Avery colection). In addition, there are also 123,782 pieces in the shape of duplicates, cuttings from magazines, etc., uncatalogued and unaccessioned but arranged by subject for consultation.

The print room was visited during the year by 1,673 persons for consultation of prints, 3,985 volumes and 2,830 portfolios and boxes being used by them.

The catalogue of the department contains 45,649 cards.

The purchase of old prints, with a special fund set aside for that purchase, and referred to in detail in last year's report, has been completed, among the additional material secured being series of the Amand-Durand reproductions of engravings and etchings by Van Dyck, Rembrandt, Duerer, Ostade, and other old masters. The Library is again indebted to Mr. Junius S. Morgan for his services in this matter. Among donors of prints were Mr. W. F. Havemeyer (late eighteenth and early nineteenth century reproductive line engravings), Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, the James D. Smillie Estate (325 prints, 4 original drawings and 26 tools), H. Le Sidaner, Mr. Hugo Reisinger, Mr. P. F. Schofield, Messrs. Kennedy and Company, Mrs. Henry Draper, and various American artists. Various monographs on individual artists have been added, and numerous books in the broader field of art, particularly applied and decorative art. Mrs. Draper has again enriched the collection by sumptuous publications, such as C. Hofstede de Groot's folio on Jan Vermeer of Delft and Carel Fabritius.

Exhibitions.

The exhibition of modern bookplates, opened in the print gallery in 1909, remained on view until March 5, 1910, when it was replaced by a selection from our large collection of etchings by Léopold Flameng, an exhibition that gave an excellent illustration of the versatility and adaptiveness of this reproductive etcher and the interesting variation of his method in accordance with the subject in hand. The selection included translations of such different artistic individualities as Rembrandt, Gainsborough, and Ingres, and a number of book illustrations that recalled the grace and charm of eighteenth century work.

About the middle of May this exhibition was succeeded by a collection of political cartoons dealing with the American Revolution and events leading up to it, over 250 pieces, mainly of English, Dutch, and French origin, lent to us for the greater part by Mr. R. T. Haines Halsey. The struggle between England and France in the new world, the rise of the Scotch influence at the British court, the stamp tax period, the Boston port bill agitation, and many military and political events of the Revolution itself were pictured in these plates, most of which were not unfriendly to America.

This latter exhibition was of such an unusual nature that it was kept on view until two days before the end of the year, when etchings depicting views of Paris took its place.

In the lower hall at LENOX the mezzotints in color by F. G. Stevenson, placed on view in December, 1909, remained until the middle of March, when they were succeeded by a display of some of our recent accessions. These accessions included line engravings by Mellan, Morghen, Drevet, Strange, Mandel; etchings by Pennell, Brangwyn, T. F. Simon, Preissig, Hornby, Robert Koehler, W. H. W. Bicknell; wood engravings by H. McCormick, W. M. Aikman, O. Grosch, and A. A. Lewis; lithographs by Barye; and numerous books, among them Stauffer's on American engravers, the Prince d'Essling's on Venetian illustrations of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, publications of the Dürer Society, monographs on Whistler, Platt, Hollar, Daumier, Callot, and Wilhelm Busch.

In June this collection of accessions gave place to a memorial exhibition of the work of James D. Smillie, in which the varied and interesting activity of a long artistic career was adequately presented. Mr. Smillie's remarkable knowledge of processes was well illustrated in the samples of his work on view, etchings, soft-ground etchings, aquatints, mezzotints, and line engravings all being shown. The interest of this exhibition caused it to be kept on view until December 22d, when it was replaced by the reproductions of Dürer's works, issued by the Dürer Society.

At the ASTOR branch the exhibitions in the wing frames were as follows: Plates from J. C. Dana's collection "The Printed Book;" "Die Gewerbe Sammlung des Königlichen Kunstgewerbe Museums zu Berlin;" photographic studies of American Indians by Karl Moon; portraits by Italian painters (photographs from the A. A. Hopkins collection); "Meister der Farbe" (colored reproductions of paintings); American bookplates; "Neue Monogramme;" "Die Zierform;" "Israels und seine Kunst;" "Textiles," by E. A. Seguy; "Compositions d'ornements," by G. Neuhoff; reproductions of paintings by Victor Vasnetzov; plates from C. Hofstede de Groot's work on "Jan Vermeer of Delft and Carel Fabritius."

THE BULLETIN.

Volume 14 of the BULLETIN for 1910 contained 804 pages. Besides the usual monthly reports, the BULLETIN contained the following lists of works in the Library: The near-eastern question and the Balkan states (January, March-May), British genealogies and local histories (June-December). The issue for February was given up to the annual report of the Director for 1909.

PURCHASES AND GIFTS.

Our purchases this year, as in the past, have been concentrated mainly on the subjects in which the library is strong and of which we have found the scholars that resort to it are most in need. American history, the economic and social sciences, the industrial arts, the files of periodicals and public documents, such special groups as the Semitic collection, naval history, the drama, etc., have had particular attention, and such groups as law, medicine, theology, education, that are represented in New York by special libraries, have been passed over.

Among the more important purchases may be mentioned the following: A collection of 3,000 Portuguese dramas, printed between 1783 and 1897; 199 Spanish dramas, 1750-1825; 249 German dramas, mainly belonging to the nineteenth century; programmes of the French opera at The Hague, 1819-67, and of the Dutch theatre there for the same period, bound in fifty-two volumes; a collection of theatrical clippings, posters, etc., relating to the British theatre, 1711-1862, bound in thirty-four volumes; a collection of papers on the Lourenço Marquez railway and the controversy connected therewith between Great Britain and Portugal, bound in forty-three volumes.

We have begun to buy books for the central circulation collection in the new building, but the bulk of the buying, cataloguing, classifying this collection of about 20,000-30,000 volumes will be done in 1911.

The most important single gift of the year was the collection of 664 volumes and 433 pamphlets relating to magic brought together by Dr. Saram R. Ellison and presented to the library by Mrs. Henry Draper; with the books came many volumes of newspaper clippings and a large number of magicians' wands, models, apparatus, etc. Mrs. Draper also gave many costly books on art, folklore, etc., in continuation of her gifts in past years, for which acknowledgment is here gratefully made.

From Miss Adelaide R. Hasse we received a valuable and interesting collection of forty-one first editions of the works of Algernon Charles Swinburne. Mr. Thomas Fortune Ryan gave us a bound file of the "Sun" newspaper, 1864-1910, welcome under any circumstances, but of an added value as providing several years of the paper under Dana's editorship heretofore lacking, our file previously beginning in 1870. From Mr. Francis W. Halsey we received twenty-three editions of "Charlotte Temple" and "Lucy Temple." Henry Romeike, Inc., gave us a collection of newspaper clippings relating to the Hudson-Fulton celebration of 1909, handsomely mounted and bound in six volumes, a welcome addition to the collection of autograph letters and addresses presented to Mayor McClellan at the opening ceremonies of the celebration held in the Metropolitan Opera House and given to us by his honor, the mayor.

Mr. P. A. B. Widener, of Philadelphia, gave us a copy of the privately printed facsimile and description of "Le livre du Chastel de Labour par Jean Bruyant," the manuscript original of which is in his collection. Mr.

Johnston Livingston gave us a copy of his privately printed genealogical record of "The Livingstons of Callendar;" Mr. James J. Higginson a set of the handsome record of "The Birds of Washington," by William Leon Dawson and John H. Bowles, printed at Seattle in 1909; Mr. John D. Crimmins a set of the "Journal of the Association for the preservation of the memorials of the dead in Ireland," 1888-1897; Mr. Hugo Reisinger a collection of eighty facsimiles of portraits of musicians selected by Gustav Kobbé.

As in past years, we received gifts from the President, the Vice-President, and Messrs. Carnegie, Dodge, Morgan, Rives, Russell and other members of the board of trustees.

So, too, Mrs. Cadwalader Jones, Mrs. S.V.V. Huntington and Mrs. C. H. Knox, Professor Ranieri Vilanova, Mrs. M. T. Duer, Mr. James W. Hawes, Mr. Howard Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Norton, the Duc de Loubat, the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, Mr. Stuyvesant F. Morris, Mr. William F. Havemeyer, Mr. Samuel P. Avery, Hon. Robert P. Porter, Mr. James C. Smillie, Mr. Horace White, Mr. Ernest Schernikow have shown their continued interest in the work of the library by gifts of books and prints.

Our thanks are due also to the American Agriculturist, the Association of the Bar, the Century Company, the Churchman, the Carnegie Institution of Washington, Cooper Union, the Evening Post, Methodist Library, New Yorker Staats-Zeitung, Publisher's Weekly, Prison Association of New York, Railway Age Gazette, Review of Reviews, Scientific American, Western Electric Company for their welcome continuations of gifts of pamphlets and current miscellaneous newspapers and magazines.

We owe an acknowledgment to the many persons and institutions that have sent us single volumes, reports, and other publications, but to name them all here would require more space than is available. Each gift has had acknowledgment at the time of receipt and most of the important ones have been mentioned in the current issues of the BULLETIN throughout the year.

CIRCULATION DEPARTMENT.

BENJAMIN ADAMS, Chief.

CIRCULATION.

During 1910 a total of 7,506,976 volumes was circulated, an increase of 493,327 volumes over 1909 (when 7,013,649 volumes were circulated) or 7.03 per cent.

The number of volumes in the department increased from 755,406 to 809,350, or 7.1 per cent.

The number of registered borrowers increased from 291,616 to 312,221, or 7 per cent.

Taking the population of Manhattan, The Bronx, and Richmond at 2,848,491 (the figures of the federal census of 1910), we show a circulation of 2.64 volumes per capita, a record of .28 volumes in stock per capita, an average of 9.28 as the number of issues per volumes in stock. In this connection it should be noted that the record of volumes in stock includes a large number of reference books, i. e., books for use only within the buildings; the actual number of volumes available for circulation is, therefore, considerably less than 809,350 and the circulation of 2.64 volumes per capita and the average number of issues per volume (9.28) are really larger than the figures given.

Of this increase in circulation (493,327) the SEWARD PARK branch is credited with 204,755 volumes; the remainder is the increase of forty-one branches or circulation centres, including the LIBRARY FOR THE BLIND and the TRAVELLING LIBRARY OFFICE, which latter alone shows an increase of 160,568 volumes. Statistics of the circulation for home use from each branch by months and by classes are recorded in tables III-IV.

The percentage of fiction was 54 in 1910 as compared with 56 in 1909.

As in 1909, the number of borrowers is arrived at by taking the number of cards on which books were charged for home use, and not by recording the total number of cardholders registered. Detailed statistics of these borrowers are given in table XIV.

During the summer of 1910 readers were allowed to withdraw eight books at one time for vacation reading, as heretofore. The time limit for keeping such books was lengthened two weeks and now extends from May 15 to October 1. A total of 35,645 volumes was borrowed under this rule, an increase of 329. Statistics of this vacation reading are shown by branches and by classes in table VI.

STOCK OF BOOKS.

Books available for home use or for use within the buildings now number 809,350 volumes. The number of separate titles included in this stock of 809,350 volumes is 98,659, of which number 72,744 are in English and 25,915 in foreign languages. The number of titles newly added was 6,105.

The distribution of the English titles in stock is as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| General Works | 1,037 | Fine Arts | 5,961 |
| Philosophy | 1,732 | Literature | 8,385 |
| Religion | 5,333 | History | 4,445 |

Central Reserve Collection.

With the opening of the new building there will be established a central reserve collection from which books will be available for circulation through the interbranch loan system. This collection will consist of books now in the branches that are no longer in active demand but are of sufficient permanent value to be subject to occasional use by readers. It is estimated that this collection will start with about 30,000 volumes, including books of all classes, and this nucleus will be enlarged by further additions from time to time as branches withdraw other books from their shelves to make room for the newer books in more active demand.

At the present time the work of withdrawing the first lot of these books from the shelves of the branches, and preparing them for transfer to the new building is well under way.

Roof Reading-Rooms.

During the past year roof reading-rooms have been opened at two additional branches, Seward Park and Columbus, making a total of five branches thus equipped, the other three being Hamilton Fish Park, Rivington Street, and St. Gabriel's Park.

In opening these roof reading-rooms the library has continued its endeavor to provide in densely populated neighborhoods adequate places for reading and study in the open air, where such opportunities are otherwise very limited. The attendance during the summer of 1910 amounted to 62,745 readers, or about 48 per cent. of the total reading-room attendance at these five branches during the same period.

Appended is a table showing the attendance in the roof reading-rooms at each of the five branches from May to October of 1910.

| Month | Seward Park | Rivington Street | Hamilton Fish Park | St. Gabriel's Park | Columbus |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| May | ..... | 792 | 879 | ..... | ..... |
| June | 3,154 | 6,095 | 4,285 | 352 | 1,181 |

Sunday and Evening Opening.

No changes were made during the past year in the arrangements for the Sunday and evening opening of branch reading-rooms. The reading-rooms of six branches remained open as before on Sunday afternoons throughout the year with attendance as follows:

| | No. of Sundays | Male | Adult | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Rivington Street | 52 | 12,394 | 11,823 | 12,577 |
| Ottendorfer | 52 | 3,001 | 2,397 | 3,177 |
| Tompkins Square | 52 | 5,951 | 5,818 | 6,016 |
| Muhlenberg | 52 | 2,730 | 2,854 | 2,857 |
| 58th Street | 52 | 1,872 | 2,225 | 2,225 |
| Riverside | 52 | 1,358 | 1,666 | 1,666 |
| | | 27,306 | 26,783 | 28,518 |

As compared with the year 1909 the results show a decrease of 205 in attendance.

ROOF READING ROOM.

SEWARD PARK BRANCH.

The reading-rooms at the TOMPKINS SQUARE and RIVINGTON STREET branches have remained open evenings until ten o'clock. Appended is a table showing the attendance during 1910.

| | PERSONS IN READING-ROOM AT 9 P. M. | NUMBER COMING IN AFTER 9 P. M. | TOTAL |
|---|---|---|---|
| RIVINGTON STREET | 25,473 | 6,498 | 31,971 |
| TOMPKINS SQUARE | 9,053 | 1,795 | 10,848 |
| | 34,526 | 8,293 | 42,819 |

This s a decrease of 1,207 as compared with 1909.

STAFF.

The staff of the department on December 31, 1910, included 505 persons (counting 52 vacant positions temporarily filled by persons on trial or by substitutes), classified as follows:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| General Staff: | | |
| Administration | 17 | |
| Cataloguing Office | 10 | |
| Book Order Office | 3 | |
| Instruction Office | 2 | |
| Bindery | 3 | |
| | | 35 |
| Branches: | | |
| Librarians-in-charge (Class A) | 42 | |
| 1st Assistant Librarians (Class B) | 35 | |
| Children's Librarians | 19 | |
| 2nd Assistant Librarians (Class C) | 102 | |
| Assistants (Class D) | 144 | |
| Attendants (Class E) | 19 | |
| Custodians of reading-rooms | 16 | |
| Janitors | 36 | |
| Messengers | 5 | |
| | | 418 |
| Vacancies | | 52 |
| Total | | 505 |

This represents an increase of two over the number reported in 1909. This increase is accounted for as follows: Added to the general staff, one; to the book order office, one; to the traveling library office, two; to SEWARD PARK branch, one; to CATHEDRAL branch, one; taken from BOND STREET, ST. GABRIEL'S PARK, STAPLETON, and PORT RICHMOND branches, one each.

Of the vacancies now existing one is in the general staff, one in the book order office, four in the bindery, one in class B, fourteen in class C, nine in class D, two in class E, seven are reading-room custodians, two are janitors, and eleven are messengers.

The number of separate appointments made during 1910 was eighty-seven; forty-six transfers were effected; fifty-five members of the staff resigned; indefinite leave of absence was granted to forty-eight, and there were two deaths.

In addition to the regular members of the staff mentioned above, there were employed during the past year 515 substitutes and extra assistants approximately 1,973 times for varying lengths of service. In the course of the year 78 of these substitutes received appointment to the staff as regular assistants at the branches.

MEETINGS AND CONFERENCES.

Meetings of the staff have been held from time to time throughout the year as heretofore. These included the regular meetings of librarians in charge of branches and heads of offices, conducted by the chief of the department and held weekly during the winter and monthly during the summer; also the monthly meetings of assistants in charge of children's rooms conducted by the supervisor. In addition, librarians in charge of branches have held meetings at frequent intervals for members of their own staffs.

Outside library conferences, such as the annual meetings of the American Library Association and the New York Library Association, and the annual convention of the National Education Association, were attended by a number of the staff. Several librarians in charge and assistants were also present at the International Library Congress at Brussels in August, 1910.

During the year the various branches have been visited frequently by the Director, the Assistant Director, the Chief of the department and his assistant, and by the supervisors of special lines of work.

STAFF NEWS.

The department has continued to issue weekly the "Staff News," copies being sent every Saturday to administrative officers, heads of departments, and to each branch. As an official record of library meetings, lectures, changes in the staff, and special notices from the various departments, the "Staff News" serves as a register of activities of the library from the date of its first issue, March 17, 1906.

Instruction Office.

Miss E. L. Foote, Instructor.

Of the class of 1910 twenty-three completed the regular nine months' course of instruction on June 30. Of these, twenty-one qualified for grade D, thirteen receiving certificates. During the latter part of the term the usual lectures were given by the Assistant Director, the Chief of the department and the supervisors of special work, the Director having addressed the class during the early part of the term. Lectures were also given by Miss Josephine Rathbone, Pratt Institute Library School, on "Fiction in a public library;" by Mrs. Alfred J. Donley, on "Library relations with the public;" by Miss Theresa Hitchler, Brooklyn Public Library, on "Cataloguing;" and by Miss Sarah Askew, New Jersey Library Commission, on "Bulletins and exhibits." The class visited the Pratt Institute Free Library, various branches of the Brooklyn Public Library, the Columbia University Library, the Newark Free Public Library, and the East Orange Free Public Library. They also visited the printing establishment of Doubleday, Page and Company, the Grolier Club, and a large bindery.

Out of a total of ninety applicants for the class of 1911, seventy took the September entrance examinations, which consisted of written and oral tests. Of these seventy candidates, twenty-two were admitted to the class and in addition two college graduates were admitted without examination, in accordance with a new rule adopted by the circulation committee. Seventeen remain in the class at the present time. Six students, whose education was considerably more than that of a high school course, were selected to form a senior division of the class, and to receive somewhat more advanced instruction in preparation for class C.

The following general regulations governing the work of the students were adopted for the school year 1910-11: (a) that class instruction shall be given to juniors on four half days and to seniors on five half days during the week; (b) that seniors shall give twenty hours per week to branch work, juniors twenty-five; (c) that this time shall be distributed at the discretion of the librarian in the half days not required for class work; (d) that, in order to obtain the certificate of the course, students shall attend ninety per cent. of the class exercises, perform all the required work to the satisfaction of the instructors, and do all the required practice work at the branches.

Courses in reference work are being given separately for the junior and senior divisions; and lecture courses have been arranged, covering various phases of library work, one lecture course being for the entire class, the other for the senior division. The Director and the Chief of the department have addressed the class, as in past years. A lecture on library buildings was given by Mr. W. R. Eastman of the New York State Education Department. A course of weekly lectures on literary topics has covered, so far, periodicals (including foreign), the choice of editions, and the literature of foreign countries. These lectures have been given by various members of the staff from both the circulation and reference departments. Miss Mary W. Plummer of Pratt Institute Library School read a paper on "Applied poetry" in this series.

A new feature of the year's work is the weekly library seminar of the seniors in which each one reports on a certain assigned subject. The topics already considered are: Function and use of libraries, library training, librarians and assistants, access to shelves, what the public reads, children's rooms. A class for the discussion of current topics is conducted weekly by the instructor. There is also a weekly reading seminar in which students report on new books assigned for critical study.

During the year 320 copies of the circular of information, in many cases accompanied by an application blank, have been supplied to applicants and other inquirers.

The Thursday morning classes for assistants from branches were continued to the end of March, the total attendance for the three months being 179. A biography reading class, which met monthly from November through March, discussed the lives of Tennyson, Stevenson, Tolstoi, Ibsen, Emerson, Aldrich, Florence Nightingale, and Edison. With the rearrangement of the training class courses this fall, these Thursday morning classes were discontinued, the subject matter of such courses being included in the regular work of the training class. Twenty-seven assistants have been regularly enrolled in several of the courses and in addition to these, thirty have attended lectures during the last two months, making a total attendance of 155.

During the year ninety volumes have been added to the technical collection in the class room, besides pamphlets and leaflets, making a total of 681 volumes and pamphlets. The circulation of books from this office has been 235 during 1910.

In September, 1910, a rule was adopted that library school graduates who have passed library school examinations in two foreign languages or who have been graduated from a college course including such languages, may present such credentials, which will be accepted in lieu of examinations in these subjects for class B; and similar credentials may be presented in literature for class B. This rule will affect the examinations of 1911.

In the examinations held for class D in May, 1910, twenty-one students and eighteen other candidates, including substitutes, passed. Of those who failed to secure a mark of 75 per cent. in the written examinations, but passed in English, nineteen qualified in a final average of examinations, work, and personal qualifications. This includes eight students, five class E assistants, and six substitutes.

Cataloguing Work.

Miss E. F. Cragin, Chief Cataloguer.

The division of the cataloguing work between the central office and the branches has been as heretofore. The books are classified at the central office and entered in the union shelf list and in the union catalogue. Subject headings are assigned and information supplied concerning authors' names where necessary, but the preparation of the cards for each branch catalogue is left to the branch itself.

The following table indicates the work done by the cataloguing office during the past year:

WORK DONE BY THE REGULAR FORCE:

|---|---|
| Books classified | 6,105 |
| Cards written for the union catalogue | 25,622 |
| Books entered in the union catalogue and shelf list | 45,882 |
| Cards and slips filed | 130,463 |
| Titles discarded from the union catalogue and shelf list | 30,575 |
| Library of Congress cards added to the union catalogue | 8,419 |
| Library of Congress cards added to the duplicate union catalogue | 4,366 |
| Library of Congress cards added to branch catalogues | 57,133 |
| Library of Congress cards sent to ASTOR | 1,514 |
| Cards written for the duplicate union catalogue | 3,383 |
| Cards written for the SEWARD PARK branch | 3,500 |
| Cards written for the RIVINGTON STREET branch | 10,827 |
| Cards written for other branches | 1,479 |
| Books accessioned for the General Offices | 183 |
| Shelf list of all branches compared with the union shelf list in the following classes: Philosophy, Religion, Sociology, Philology. | |
| Cards written at branches | 163,607 |

WORK DONE BY TEMPORARY ASSISTANTS:

|---|---|
| Books accessioned for central circulation collection | 12,902 |
| Books entered in the union catalogue and shelf list for central circulation collection | 5,973 |
| Shelf list cards written for central circulation collection | 6,337 |

In addition to the regular work of the department, the card catalogue of the RIVINGTON STREET branch was entirely rewritten.

In November the branches began to send in lists of books to be transferred to the central reserve collection in the new building. Books have been withdrawn from eighteen branches and re-accessioned and shelf-listed for the new collection. This work will be continued through 1911.

The "Monthly List of Additions" and special book-lists prepared by the cataloguing office are reported below under "Publications."

The union catalogue of books in the entire circulation system has remained open for consultation by the public on week days and holidays from 9 A.M. to 9 P.M., with the exception of the summer months, from July 15 to September 15, when the office closed at 6 P.M. The table below shows the use of this catalogue during 1910:

| | DAY USE | EVENING USE | TOTAL |
|---|---|---|---|
| January | 106 | 55 | 161 |
| February | 152 | 54 | 206 |
| March | 126 | 58 | 184 |
| April | 99 | 52 | 151 |
| May | 112 | 62 | 174 |

| July | 85 | 50 | 135 |
| August | 116 | closed | 116 |
| September | 121 | 38 | 159 |
| October | 163 | 77 | 240 |
| November | 142 | 67 | 209 |
| December | 145 | 67 | 212 |
| Total | 1,489 | 647 | 2,136 |

Interbranch Loans.

The work of the interbranch loan system, conducted under the supervision of the cataloguing office, continues to show rapid growth, a total of 42,151 volumes being interchanged among the branches by this method during the past year in response to the requests of readers, an increase of 6,378 volumes over the record of 1909. Following is a detailed statement for the years 1907-1910, inclusive:

| | 1907 | 1908 | 1909 | 1910 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| (1) Books requested | 33,888 | 46,075 | 50,754 | 61,142 |
| (2) Books supplied | 23,197 | 32,696 | 35,773 | 42,151 |
| (3) Calls by messenger | 90,579 | 137,031 | 142,781 | 169,773 |

Of the 61,142 books requested through the interbranch loan system the past year 6,791 were not in any branch, but many that were found suitable for general circulation have since been purchased and sent to branches. Of the other books requested, but not furnished, 9,338 were at the bindery, worn out, or in too great demand at the home branch to be available for loaning to other branches.

The ratio of books supplied, to those asked for, was slightly smaller in 1910 than in the preceding year, being 69 per cent. in 1910 as against 70.5 per cent. in 1909.

The record of books requested during the past year through the inter-branch loan system, showing classes and kinds of books, is given in the following table:

ENGLISH.

|---|---|---|---|
| Philosophy | 2,924 | Travel | 3,166 |
| Religion | 2,184 | Biography | 3,707 |
| Sociology | 5,582 | History | 3,276 |

|---|---|
| Total English | 55,151 |
| Total foreign | 5,991 |
| Total English and foreign | 61,142 |

The total of requests for English and foreign books through the inter-branch loan system shows an increase of 10,388 over the number recorded in 1909.

During the past year the assistants in charge of the work have written 14,542 notes of explanation and filed 80,099 cards. Lists of books on special subjects have been prepared at the request of readers as heretofore, 134 subjects being included during 1910, classified as follows: philosophy, 1; religion, 4; sociology, 15; philology, 1; natural science, 11; useful arts, 38; fine arts, 24; literature, 7; travel, 7; biography, 22; history, 4.

School Work.

Edwin White Gaillard, Supervisor.

Probably the most interesting development of the year in connection with the work with schools has been the extension of the plan whereby classes of elementary school children have received definite instruction in the use of books as tools, and a working knowledge of the card catalogue. This instruction has been given systematically in three of the branch libraries in school time with the aid of the teachers of the classes, and occasionally in twenty-two other branches. In 1909, 112 classes, with their teachers, came to the branch libraries, while during 1910, 225 classes made these visits.

The Library section of the National Education Association at its convention in 1910 devoted one entire round-table to the general question of the training of children in the use of books and of the library; the Library section of the New York Teachers' Association, in December, 1910, also devoted a session to this subject. It seemed to be the sense of these conferences that class visits to libraries are useful and most desirable. Much thought has been given to the subject by school principals and teachers, and by the branch librarians. Various plans have been tried with different schools, and with different classes in the same school. It is worthy of note that notwithstanding the large number and variety of classes that have made these visits very little has developed so far to indicate that there is any uniform system or method to be used in receiving groups of children in the branches, and interesting and instructing them along the desired lines. Each class must be regarded as, in a sense, unique, and means and methods which have been used with one class, while suggestive, are not necessarily applicable to another. It is this recognition of the individuality of each class that makes this feature of the library interesting to teachers and children, and probably has much to do with the greatly increased school reference use. This has grown from 137,577 in 1908 to 168,104 in 1909 and to 227,856 in 1910.

As a result of the increase in this work it has been necessary to enlarge somewhat the special collections of reference books gathered for the use of schools. The additions during 1910 were distributed as follows:

| | NO. OF VOLS. 1909 | ADDED DURING 1910 |

During the first years of the work with schools, special stress was laid on the desirability of purchasing for teachers books necessary for their professional advancement. Practically any book that came within the scope of the circulation department was bought on individual request, the intention being in this way to accumulate a sufficient supply of books throughout the system to meet all reasonable demands. As a result of this extensive buying in the past, and as a further result of an adaptation of the inter-branch loan system, it has been possible this year to increase the use of the library by teachers, even though the purchases made at their requests have been less than in the past.

This increased use is shown by the following table recording the number of "special study cards" in actual use by teachers on December 22nd, 1909 and 1910:

| | 1909 | 1910 | | 1909 | 1910 |

A large number of lists of books for teachers has been prepared in the branches, and many collections of books used in connection with the advanced work of teachers or for ordinary grade activities have been set aside in the branches and sometimes sent to the schools.

Additional reference material provided during the year consists of two sets of the catalogues and the bulletins of the leading colleges and universities of this country. One set has been placed in the CHATHAM SQUARE branch, the other set being divided among five other branches.

Two broadside lists of "Recent books of interest to teachers" (in an edition of 4,500 copies of each) were issued during the year. Copies were sent to each branch for distribution to teachers and were posted on over four hundred bulletin boards in public schools, both elementary and high, in private and parochial schools, and in the universities of the three boroughs.

The following is a summary of the more notable features of the work with schools for the year 1910 with comparative notes for 1909:

| | 1909 | 1910 |

Work with Children.

Miss Annie Carroll Moore, Supervisor.

Although no new buildings have been opened, the work with children has been considerably expanded and intensified during the past year. There has been a complete reorganization of the work at three branches. In one building (Morrisania) the reorganization involved the removal of the children's books from the first floor to the second and the installation of separate charging and registration systems with increased facilities for reference and reading-room work. In another building (Hudson Park) a number of changes in the general arrangement of the room has made it easier to supervise and more attractive to children, resulting in a rapid upbuilding of both circulation and reading-room work.

The attempt to carry on reference and reading-room work for children and adults in the same room has proved unsuccessful wherever the trial has been made. With the exception of five branches in Manhattan and the four Staten Island branches, a complete separation of the work for children has now been made, resulting in more satisfactory work for the adult public as well as for children.

In twenty-eight branch library buildings an entire floor is devoted to children and is administered as a department in most instances, the general circulation practice being the same as for the adult department and affording equal opportunity for general experience and training in circulation work.

The circulation of books from children's rooms in 1910 was 2,645,708. In 1909 it was 2,468,383. (These figures do not include the circulation to children through travelling libraries.) The circulation of books from children's rooms represents more than one-third of the total circulation reported from forty branch libraries and from the travelling libraries.

There have been added 65,835 volumes to the branch collections. Of this number 629 were added to the reference collections through the office of the Supervisor of school work. In 1909 the number of additions was 82,499 and the number of books added through the office of the Supervisor of school work was 3,006. The figures for 1909 included the stocking of four new children's rooms while no new rooms have been opened during 1910.

The total number of volumes shelved in children's rooms is 198,641, as compared with 180,003 in 1909. Of this number at least 18,000 are for reading and reference use in the library buildings.

While the book collections are stronger and in better condition than ever before, there is still an insatiable demand for certain classes of books, notably American history, civics, and biography, the best known fairy and folk tales and poems, books for children who are learning to read, books on aeroplanes, electricity, handicraft and magic, books of dialogues and plays, song-books and drawing-books.

It is impossible as yet to supply in sufficient number such specific titles as the Bible (Old Testament), Grimm's "Fairy Tales"; "Little Women"; "Heidi; the story of a little Swiss girl"; "Pinnochio; or the adventures of an Italian marionette"; Hill's "Fighting a Fire"; the American histories by Fiske, Gordy, and Montgomery, and certain of the books used in connection with the story hours.

The returns from the inventory show a somewhat larger total of books missing than in 1909. The number is small, however, in proportion to the expansion of work in the new buildings opened after the inventory for 1909 was taken. Most of the children's rooms show a gratifying reduction in losses. The interest taken by the assistants in this branch of the work and the practical value of it in putting them in such touch with their book collections as to serve as a means of strengthening them grows from year to year. The excellent care given to books in use in the libraries and in circulation is to be especially noted and commended for the effect it is having in the civic training of children and on the general appearance of the rooms.

Accurate statistics of the reference and reading-room use of children's rooms are extremely difficult to obtain. The reports show 890,006 during

CHILDREN'S ROOM LOBBY, AFTER SCHOOL.

SEWARD PARK BRANCH.

1910. The increased use of the children's rooms for study and for quiet reading is everywhere apparent, notably in branches where the story hour and visiting classes from the public schools have become established features of the work.

A report of the use of the children's room of the 67TH STREET branch by the pupils of the School for the Improved Instruction of Deaf Mutes reveals the interesting fact that the books in use by "hearing children" seem much more desirable than the books in their own school library.

The demands of the visiting classes from the elementary schools have tested the resources of the children's rooms as well as of the children's librarians, some of whom have given very successful talks on the use of books of general reference and of books on special topics. Aside from the direct value of the work as a stimulation to the use of books as aids to study, it is developing a most valuable relationship to the library on the part of the groups of boys and girls and the school principals and teachers concerned, and is leading to a decided increase in the amount and variety of individual reference work.

During a period of two years the reference questions asked at the various desks have been reported with the monthly written report of each children's room. The list has been kept with a view to its suggestiveness in stocking and cataloguing the books for the children's reference and reading-room in the new building. It is interesting to note the increase within a year of what may be designated as subjects of spontaneous interest in proportion to the regular school topics. This is largely due, it is believed, to growing familiarity with the collections of books now to be found in children's reference and reading rooms and to the more general reading of better periodicals and magazines outside the library as well as inside.

Story telling has been continued and extended along the lines indicated in the report for 1909. The resignation of Miss Mary Douglas, assistant to the Supervisor, to become supervisor of the children's work in the St. Louis Public Library, took effect early in February, leaving Miss Anna C. Tyler, assistant in charge of the story telling, to carry the work alone. Three children's librarians acted in turn as visiting story tellers until April 1st. The new assistant to the Supervisor, Miss Winona H. Buck, took the place of each in her absence from her children's room, thus gaining an opportunity for the practical study of branch conditions, which proved of immediate value to the book-order work of the Supervisor's office.

The assistant in charge of the story telling keeps in touch with the assistants who are telling stories by an outline programme of the stories in preparation from month to month, by personal conference and criticism and by occasional meetings with the story tellers. Three meetings were held during 1910. At the first meeting the principles of story telling were discussed and a background of preparation sugested. Illustrative stories were told by Miss Tyler and a list of sources was presented. The second meeting was held at the close of the season's work and the story tellers gave their various experiences and a personal estimate of the results of the year's work. The third meeting was held jointly with the regular monthly meeting for the discussion of children's books and the subject was presented to the librarians in charge and general assistants and thrown open for discussion and comment.

The total number of regular story hours reported from thirty-six libraries during 1910 is 1,008. The total attendance, 30,000. Full statistics, including stories told in roof reading-rooms, summer playgrounds, public schools, and informally in the library, are not obtainable.

The influence of the story hour upon the younger children has everywhere been evident, not alone for its suggestiveness in relation to reading, but for its socializing influence in bringing together children, parents, teachers, play-ground workers, settlement workers and librarians in a natural manner on the subject of children's books and reading. Story hours and reading-clubs are as fully appreciated by older boys and girls.

A weekly evening story hour for boys who had previously cared to read very little except the lightest fiction is thus described by Miss Tyler: "The story hour was carried on co-operatively with the children's librarian from November, 1909, to May, 1910. History stories of Australia, India, and South Africa were told by the assistant in charge of the story telling twice a month. The children's librarian both told and read from books somewhat related to the subject on alternate evenings. For example, stories of Australia's discovery and early history were followed by stories of other noted adventurers, buccaneers and bushrangers. Stevenson's "Black Arrow," Pyle's "Men of Iron" and "Jack Ballister's Fortunes," Stockton's "Buccaneers and Pirates," and Henry Kingsley's "Geoffrey Hamlin" were all used in this connection. Stories from the history of India were accompanied by stories of some of her great men, Kipling's "Kim," the "Just-so stories" and the "Jungle Books." The books have been in active circulation ever since from shelves on which they had stood unused for weeks at a time. While waiting for the story hour to begin the boys usually assembled from a half to a full hour before the appointed time, either to read or quietly to enjoy the illustrated books and papers in their reading room."

The co-operative work thus indicated has been extended until nineteen story clubs for older boys have been formed at which history stories, hero stories (including the Odyssey) have been the chief themes. Sixteen story clubs or reading circles have been formed for older girls, at which Greek myths and hero stories, the great story poems, the Wagner opera stories, Shakespeare stories, and selections from Kipling and Dickens are being told or read. It has been impossible to meet the many requests for story telling from schools and other institutions.

The Supervisor served as chairman of the committee on story telling for the Playground Association of America during 1910 and presented a report, accompanied by lists on the subject, at the annual conference of the Association held in Rochester in June. This report subsequently appeared in "The Playground."

The conference was also attended by the assistant in charge of the story telling, who was a member of the same committee. Some of the results of this meeting were immediate. Miss Tyler was asked to attend the conference for child research and welfare held at Clark University the same month and on four successive days to tell stories before the formal papers of the afternoon and evening sessions were read.

As one result of this report a request was received from the Board of Education for library assistants to tell stories in the school playgrounds, and some experiments were made in this direction. Stories were also told in two of the municipal playgrounds, and in one instance the playground story hour was largely instrumental in bringing children to a library under reorganization.

Playground teachers also became interested and visited the children's rooms in their turn. From a playground under a church organization came a group of more than twenty Chinese children whose love of pictures made their choice of books of special interest and whose use of the CHATHAM SQUARE children's room during the summer months was constant. Owing to a more intimate study of playground conditions during the preparation of the report on story telling, the summer work became more interesting than ever before and the assistants at several branches made a point of visiting playgrounds and recreation centres. More informal story telling and reading aloud was done in roof reading-rooms, leading to a better reading use of books on the roofs than had existed hitherto.

The exhibits previously reported as loaned by the American Museum of Natural History have been continued, with additions to the Chinese exhibit and to the exhibit of games and toys. A small exhibit of wax figures illustrating Mexican life and another illustrating South African life have been added to those reported last year. A private collection illustrating life in Bermuda was loaned to the 115TH STREET branch. Three sets of colored pictures illustrative of English history have been purchased by the library for exhibition in children's rooms and are reported as of special interest to boys and men. Some paintings of New York harbor and street scenes were lent to the JACKSON SQUARE branch by the artist, John Edwin Jackson.

The exhibits of books suggested as Christmas gifts were again shown at the St. George branch (where the exhibit has been maintained for three years as a permanent collection) and the 58th Street branch. The Tottenville and Port Richmond branches also held exhibits.

The Hudson Park children's room has received from the Hon. Daniel B. Fearing a gift of thirty dolls in the costumes of many nations. The dolls given by Mr. Fearing to the Tompkins Square children's room last year have been much used by classes of school children in their study of the costumes of different countries and have been a great source of pleasure to the children and their parents, many of whom were of the nationalities represented, and one of whom, noting the absence of dolls in Hungarian costume, presented two which had been sent as a gift to her little girl. The dolls have been used in connection with various story hours, and at the end of a year are still in good condition.

Extension of the City History Club work has not been as rapid as hoped for, owing to the lack of qualified leaders to take charge of the clubs, which are under the direction of the City History Club of New York. Eight clubs held meetings at five branch libraries during 1910, and it is the intention of the club to extend the library centres as soon as possible.

The monthly meetings for assistants in charge of children's rooms have been marked by the development of greater ease on the part of the assistants in stating problems and in the discussion of them, and have been full of suggestion to the Supervisor. Three meetings have been largely devoted to a discussion of the selection of books for the circulation collection of the children's room in the new building, and each children's room has since reported those titles which in its judgment are "dead wood" upon its shelves. The problem has led to immediate results in the children's rooms by enlisting the interest of all assistants, and it should bring to bear a varied and valuable circulation experience upon the children's room in the new building.

At the monthly meetings for the discussion of children's books Miss Augusta Markowitz contributed a paper upon Hungarian books for children, Miss Theresa Blumberg a paper upon Russian and Polish books, and Miss Eugenie Krauss a paper upon German books. In each instance the meeting was held at a branch serving a locality in which the languages referred to are spoken. The papers read were in each case the work of the librarian in charge. At the May meeting Miss Mary W. Plummer, director of Pratt Institute School of Library Science, read a paper on "The Seven Joys of Reading" and Miss Anna C. Tyler presented her report on story telling. At the last two meetings of the year the topics were "Children's Books of 1910" and "Applied Poetry." Miss Plummer's paper on the latter subject was followed by comparisons of experience in reading poetry to children in different libraries. The meetings have been largely attended by librarians in charge and assistants from all grades who participated freely in the discussion.

CHILDREN'S ROOM.

HARLEM LIBRARY BRANCH—MT. MORRIS PARK.

In addition to the various meetings inside the library, the Supervisor addressed the New York State Federation of Mothers' Clubs at Cornell University in October, lectured at the Pratt Institute School of Library Science and the New Jersey Summer Library School, and during the year has spoken at several mothers' clubs connected with public schools and with The Training School for Teachers, Brooklyn.

The demands upon the office of the children's rooms for lists of books for children, in English and in foreign languages, and for special information on the part of author, editor, translator, publishers, social workers, and educators from other countries, as well as our own, have increased very rapidly. No printed lists or bibliographies have as yet been published, but an abundance of suggestive material has been gathered for such purpose.

During the year a series of photographs illustrating the daily life in the children's rooms has been taken and will be shown with the pictures of the libraries of other boroughs at The Child Welfare Exhibit in January-February, 1911.

The number of qualified children's librarians was increased from fourteen to twenty-three during 1910. Of this number one has been appointed librarian of a western library, another has returned as assistant librarian to the library from which she had been granted leave of absence, a third is acting as first assistant at one of our own branch libraries, and a fourth is on leave of absence; the other nineteen being in charge of children's rooms at the present time.

The qualification test was again successfully completed by four candidates. Certain modifications were made in the form of the test as described in 1909 and the practical work was carried on in four branches, instead of three. Some interesting special investigations of other neighborhood organizations were made. The independent reading suggested by the Supervisor and discussed with her each month was made an even stronger feature of the test than during the previous year. Owing to the demands incident to the opening of the children's room in the new building, and the growing needs of the department in general, it was decided not to offer the test during 1910-1911. The value of the test in solving problems of practical administration has been clearly shown in the reorganization of the work of several rooms, in the establishment of new work, and in the grasp of their own work shown by candidates who have returned to rooms from which they had been detached for a period of six months. Eventually the best features of the test should be embodied in the special training which is the most urgent of the many needs in the work for children at the close of the fourth year of its period of organization. Not only is there need of a larger number of children's librarians fully qualified to take charge of children's rooms, but each of the large children's rooms needs also a corps of assistants who understand their work and have the requisite personal and educational qualifications for it. That this is a need existing, not only in New York city, but all over the country, is evidenced by the many applications to recommend children's librarians received during the past year.

The number of assistants who show promise and from whose ranks assistants in charge have been steadily recruited is larger than ever before; but it does not yet meet the needs of so rapid an expansion and development of work as has been indicated by the activities carried on in children's rooms as a natural development of the school work as well as of the direct work with children.

Great credit is due to children's librarians who have met this problem with assistants who were unprepared for their work but who have been able to develop both work and assistants simultaneously. To the co-operation and genuine interest of the librarians in charge the success of what has been a most fruitful year in the children's work may be largely attributed. A clearer conception of the work for children in its relation to the adult work of each branch and a stronger unity of purpose in carrying it steadily forward should lead to ultimate results of great value to the work as a whole.

The work of the children's rooms for the year 1910 is shown in the following table:

Travelling Libraries.

Miss A. E. Brown, in Charge.

The circulation during 1910 through travelling libraries amounted to 1,189,118 volumes, an increase of 160,568, or 15 per cent. over the year 1909. The number of stations to which books were sent during the year was 802; of these 693 were in the boroughs of Manhattan and The Bronx, and 109 in Richmond.

The circulation through the department of education, including the recreation department, has amounted to 490,599 volumes; through the fire department, 24,694; department of health, including hospitals, 4,842; other city departments, 38,091; parochial and private schools, 140,212; industrial schools, 282,639; churches and Sunday schools, 16,773; business stations, 52,708; community libraries, 48,513; study clubs and similar organizations, 37,386; Young Men's Christian Association, 3,077; Young Women's Christian Association, 7,288; asylums and charitable institutions, 14,309; home libraries, 9,127.

The branch office for Staten Island reports a general increase in the work of the past year. Books were supplied to 109 stations during 1910, with a total circulation of 79,657, an increase of 63 per cent. over that for the year 1909. The largest collections have been maintained at Great Kills, Huguenot Park, Kreischerville, Linoleumville, and New Dorp, where the books were available for circulation to the public. Books were also supplied to eighteen public schools, both for use in the classroom and for general neighborhood circulation and in response to requests several small collections were sent to teachers who desired books for special courses of study. In all about thirty-seven school sets were supplied during the past year. Other stations included eleven fire department houses, each having a library of twenty books, exchanged monthly, seven Sunday schools, each supplied with about 100 books, six kindergartens, three public playgrounds, and two recreation centres. In addition, twenty-one home libraries of ten selected books each have been supplied, while a club of "Boy Scouts" at the Staten Island Academy was furnished with a library of about 100 volumes.

Many public schools in Manhattan and The Bronx have received books during the past year through travelling libraries, as heretofore, including 129 elementary schools, where books were distributed from the class room by teachers, and thirteen high schools, where the books were placed in the school libraries as supplementary collections. Books were also sent to several evening high schools and manual training schools, while special collections were supplied to the New York University summer school in connection with courses in pedagogy, the kindergarten, and school gardening. In cooperation with the recreation department further progress has been made during the past year in supplying travelling libraries to summer playgrounds and evening centres. Book collections have been maintained in sixty-six summer playgrounds, more than twice the number of playgrounds supplied during 1909, and in twenty-three evening centres. The total number of volumes circulated through the recreation department in 1910 amounted to 375,528.

In addition to the public schools, forty-three parochial, industrial, and institutional schools received books last year, a total of 6,444 volumes being supplied in sets of from twenty to fifty copies for daily use in the classroom as supplementary reading. The books were of a semi-popular nature, such as Baldwins' "Fairy stories and fables," Burroughs' "Little nature studies," Straubenmueller's "Home geography of New York City," etc. This circulation during 1910 amounted to 282,639 volumes.

Outside the schools, the stations supplied by travelling libraries showing the largest use of books have been those in business houses, department stores, and factories, where a special effort has been made to furnish books not only for recreational purposes, but also for the use of employees who wish to study in connection with their work along special lines, such as business administration, manufacturing, civil service examinations, the various trades, etc. During the year collections were maintained at thirty-four such places, the total circulation of books amounting to 52,708.

In reviewing the work of the TRAVELLING LIBRARY OFFICE mention should be made of the rapid growth in the circulation of books through the city fire department. In 1901 the number of engine houses in Manhattan, The Bronx, and Richmond supplied with books was twenty-nine; by 1908 this had increased to seventy-six; while during the last year ninety-four engine houses received travelling libraries, a total of 4,644 volumes being sent. As a further development of this work arrangements have recently been made between Commissioner Waldo and the public libraries of New York, Brooklyn, and Queens, to supply travelling libraries to all engine houses in the five boroughs of the city, thus insuring the extension of uniform privileges to the entire fire department.

Many other places were supplied by travelling libraries during the past year, including study clubs, literary societies, and mothers' clubs. Of the year's circulation 48,513 volumes were circulated from twenty-one stations properly classed as community libraries, open to people in the surrounding neighborhoods. For the most part these libraries were located in settlements, clubs, stores and churches, where the books would be easily accessible.

The TRAVELLING LIBRARY OFFICE has continued the distribution of worn books withdrawn from the branches of the circulation department. Such books as are suitable for further use are sent to many places where regular stations for the circulation and exchange of library books cannot be maintained. The demand for discarded books is constantly increasing, and among the numerous places supplied in this way during 1910 may be mentioned newsboys' clubs, fresh-air homes, longshoremen's and sailors' reading-rooms, camps for tuberculosis patients, reform schools, hospitals, insane asylums, and prisons. The United States Revenue Cutter Service, and one United States battleship have also received books from this source.

Detailed statistics of the work of the TRAVELLING LIBRARY OFFICE during 1910 will be found in table XV of this report.

WORK WITH THE BLIND.

MISS LUCILE GOLDTHWAITE, in Charge.

The continued usefulness and activity of the collection of embossed reading matter is evidenced by the increasing circulation. This, however, falls far short of what it might be were more material published. A comparison of the circulation by types shows that the greatest gain has been made in the Moon system owing to an arrangement made last year with the Free Library of Philadelphia, whereby readers of Moon type, living in New York state formerly using the collection in that library were invited to draw books from our collection.

The increase in the circulation of American Braille is owing to its use by the blind children in the public schools and European Braille grows in popularity on account of the many magazines published in England. Nearly all of the 4,498 periodicals sent out during the year were in the latter type.

Below is the circulation for 1910 classified according to type:

|---|---|
| New York Point | 7,012 |
| European Braille | 4,486 |
| Moon type | 3,255 |
| American Braille | 635 |
| Line letter | 137 |
| Ink type | 12 |
| | 15,537 |

Of these, 12,830 volumes were sent to readers through the mail, and 315 volumes by express.

The circulation of embossed music scores during 1910 amounted to 1716 pieces, of which 1,555 were instrumental music, and 161 vocal music.

| | ADDITIONS | | TOTAL | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | BOOKS | MUSIC | BOOKS | MUSIC |
| New York Point | 317 | 16 | 1,787 | 2,365 |
| Moon type | 244 | .. | 1,337 | ... |
| European Braille | 124 | 68 | 734 | 851 |
| American Braille | 252 | .. | 574 | ... |
| Line letter | 4 | .. | 326 | 1 |
| Ink type | 10 | .. | 27 | ... |
| Oriental Braille | 4 | .. | 12 | ... |
| | 955 | 84 | 4,797 | 3,217 |

The teacher employed for the instruction of adult blind residents of New York city has made 515 visits during the past year, and given 299 lessons.

The number of active readers during 1910 was 541. Of this number 256 were residents of New York city, 62 lived in New York state outside the city, 86 in New Jersey, and 40 in Connecticut. The library circulates books for the blind in other states than the three just mentioned when local opportunities fail to supply the books desired, but naturally has felt that its first interest is for the blind in the immediate vicinity.

Borrowers living outside New York city were distributed as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Alabama | 2 | New Hampshire | 3 |
| Arkansas | 1 | New Jersey | 86 |
| California | 1 | New Mexico | 1 |
| Connecticut | 40 | New York State | 62 |
| District of Columbia | 2 | North Carolina | 2 |
| Georgia | 2 | Ohio | 5 |
| Illinois | 8 | Pennsylvania | 8 |
| Indiana | 4 | Rhode Island | 2 |
| Iowa | 4 | South Carolina | 1 |
| Kansas | 4 | South Dakota | 1 |
| Kentucky | 1 | Tennessee | 3 |
| Louisiana | 3 | Texas | 3 |
| Maryland | 2 | Vermont | 1 |
| Massachusetts | 14 | Virginia | 2 |
| Michigan | 4 | Washington | 1 |
| Minnesota | 4 | Wisconsin | 2 |
| Missouri | 4 | | |
| Nebraska | 2 | | 285 |

The relative demand for the different types of printing from the various sections of the country remains practically as in 1909.

Book Selection.

In the selection of books the library has continued its practice of receiving books on approval. During the year 6,105 new titles were approved by the committee on book selection and purchased. To make the best selection from the output of new books the library has obtained, in many cases, the opinions of experts in the various classes, and during the past year has had the benefit of advice from members of the faculty of the following institutions: Columbia University—books on astronomy and biology, economics, philosophy, and technology; Teachers College—books on mathematics, physics and chemistry, philology and education; Metropolitan Museum of Art—books on the fine arts; New York Botanical Garden—books on botany, forestry, and allied subjects; New York University—books on special periods of history; Institute of Musical Art—books on music; Union Theological Seminary—books on various phases of theology and religion.

Book Order Office.

Le Roy Jeffers, in Charge.

During the year 137,149 volumes have been bought at an average cost per volume, including binding, of $.90.

Of this total 28,569 volumes of popular fiction and poetry were bought in sheets and bound in half leather. In addition, 2,992 volumes in foreign languages, supplied in paper covers, were bound in cloth or leather before being put into circulation. By careful selection of editions we have succeeded in buying in permanent binding all popular titles in adult and juvenile fiction at an average cost per volume of $1.19.

The catalogue of editions suitable for library use now numbers 4,448 titles and much information has been added to it during the year. On each card are noted the American and English prices of available editions, the best edition in publisher's binding, the best edition in special binding, information in regard to type, paper, illustrations, etc. Over 35,000 volumes have been examined and compared with the entries in this catalogue to determine whether the right edition has been supplied and the right discount given to the library.

About 5,000 volumes of American and English works, checked from publishers' lists, reviews, etc., about 600 volumes in French, German and other foreign languages, and in addition many volumes sent voluntarily by publishers and booksellers, have been examined by the chief of the circulation department and the book committee. Of the volumes sent on approval the library has kept about 4,600 and has returned about 2,900, including duplicates.

In the course of office routine 8,100 titles have been looked up in the union catalogue, 12,400 order slips have been written in duplicate, 143,000 slips have been filed alphabetically as the books were ordered and refiled after delivery of the orders. The system of triplicate numbering of order slip, the item on the bill, and the book itself has been continued with satisfaction; the invoicing of each book by serial number and title when it is forwarded to a branch insures acknowledgment of receipt by the branch librarian who returns the invoice, with her signature, to the book order office.

In addition to the ordering of new books the receiving and assorting of periodicals for binding has been done by this office as has been the custom in the past.

Binding.

Miss Rose G. Murray, in Charge.

During 1910 further efforts have been made toward systematizing the work of rebinding and discarding damaged or worn-out books. The object in view has been the prevention of accumulation of such books on the shelves and the forwarding of books to the binders more frequently and in smaller lots; this has insured a prompt return to the shelves and a reduction in the number of books withdrawn at a given time from circulation. At the end of the year 1909 there were 14,930 volumes at the binders; at the end of 1910 there were only 9,290 volumes thus withdrawn.

The number of volumes discarded during 1910 amounted to 78,878, or one per cent. of the total circulation for the year. This is considerably smaller than the number of volumes discarded in 1908 and 1909, which amounted to 93,600 and 93,000, respectively, or one and four-tenths and one and three-tenths per cent. of the total circulation for those years, and which represented to some extent, a reduction of past accumulations of worn-out books. The percentage of discards for 1910 represents a more normal rate, and will probably remain at a fairly uniform figure.

Of the 78,878 volumes discarded in the past year, 22,244 were in a condition suitable for further use by the TRAVELLING LIBRARY OFFICE at stations such as prisons, hospitals, etc., from which books cannot be returned. In reporting the more systematic care of books it is significant to note that only 15,000 volumes in 1908 and 16,000 in 1909 were thus available for the TRAVELLING LIBRARY OFFICE from a much larger number of discards.

The number of volumes sent to be rebound during the past year was 72,356, of which 63,066 were returned by December 31st. Of the total number of volumes rebound 1,760 were periodicals. The library bindery rebound 7,682, an increase of 833 over 109. Many of the books that need rebinding have neither the value nor the use in circulation that would warrant their being rebound in the more expensive leather binding. In 1909, after extensive experiments, the full cloth style of binding was adopted as most economical and best suited to such books. During 1910 out of the total of 72,356 volumes rebound about 35,000 were done in full cloth, with a saving of about ten per cent. in the cost. The number of volumes at the branches in the beginning of 1910 waiting to be rebound was 6,000; at the end of the year 6,500.

To avoid the necessity of early rebinding of new and popular standard books, of which an extensive circulation is assured, the department has continued the policy of buying such books in sheets which are then bound in strongly reinforced bindings before being placed on the shelves. In 1910 out of a total of 137,149 volumes purchased, 28,569 were thus bound.

Small repairs to books were done at the branches during the past year as formerly, but to a decreasing extent, since it has been found more economical either to have such books rebound or discarded than to devote much time to repairs. Further reduction in the cost of small repairs has been accomplished by standardizing materials used in this work.

Music Collection.

The entire collection of music scores for circulation now amounts to 8,030 volumes, an increase of 1,111 volumes over the number recorded in 1909. The music scores are distributed among all the branches, but as a rule the larger collections are placed at branches situated near musical centres or where a special demand is shown.

During the past year the circulation of music scores was 34,899, an increase of 2,088 over that of the previous year. It is interesting to note that 42 per cent. of the total circulation of music was opera scores, for which there is a large demand in all branches, specially during the opera season.

The classified list of music scores now in the library is shown as follows: operas, 3,519; oratorios and church music, 611; songs and choruses, 1,837; piano, 1,503; organ, 81; other instruments, 479. Statistics of circulation by branch and by class are given in table VII of this report.

Technical Books.

In response to growing demand shown at almost every branch, the library has made a special effort during the past year to provide the best recent books on the useful arts and applied sciences. In purchasing such technical works, it has been our purpose to obtain those written for the practical assistance of workers as well as those intended for the theoretical instruction of students. The subjects in which the department is now strongest are as follows:

Aeronautics, 47 titles; automobiles, 53 titles; building and construction (including carpentry, masonry, heating and ventilation, painting and paper-hanging, plumbing), 249 titles; chemical technology, 148 titles; engineering, civil and mechanical (including hydraulic, electric, and mining), 542 titles; engines (including steam, gas, oil, blowing, and pumping), 185 titles; mechanic trades, 86 titles; machine tools, 35 titles; manufacturing, 172 titles; mills and mill-work, 29 titles; metallurgy, 40 titles.

The library has also made special provision for technical books in other fields, such as agriculture (including fruit-growing, dairying, bees and bee-culture), 296 titles; domestic economy (including cooking and sewing), 464 titles.

Newspapers and Current Periodicals.

As stated in the last report a number of newspapers are regularly kept on file at the various branches; these now amount to 89 different publications, including the New York daily papers, both in English and foreign languages, and several newspapers published abroad. Current periodicals received at the branches during 1910 amounted to 462 different titles, of which 352 were in English and 110 in foreign languages. The foreign newspapers and periodicals include the following languages: Bohemian, Chinese, Danish, Dutch, Esperanto, Finnish, Flemish, French, German, Hebrew, Hungarian, Italian, Norwegian, Polish, Rumanian, Russian, Slovak, Spanish, Swedish, and Yiddish.

Foreign Books.

The number of books in the department in languages other than English is 71,790, an increase of 7,458 over 1909. Notable additions have been made to collections in the Hungarian, Swedish, and Yiddish languages.

The circulation during 1910 was 395,661, an increase of 50,401 over that recorded in 1909. Detailed statistics for 1910 are given in the following table:

| | VOLUMES | CIRCULATION | | VOLUMES | CIRCULATION |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Bohemian ... | 4,148 | 23,647 | Polish ..... | 610 | 3,856 |

Publications.

During the past year the "Monthly list of additions" has been issued as heretofore, and is now in its tenth volume. It is compiled under the supervision of the cataloguing office and contains a list of the new books in English and foreign languages acquired each month by the department. An author index to volume IX, May, 1909 to April, 1910, was published last June. In addition to the usual reports of new books the "Monthly list of additions" printed from time to time during 1910 special lists, as follows:

Books in Dutch and Flemish, (April); books for the blind added since June, 1909, (May); books in Swedish, (June); books on airships and flying machines, (July); books in Polish, (October and November); books on turbines, (November).

Two lists were published separately, one of the Hungarian books in the library, comprising 1,578 titles, and a reprint of the list of Polish books, containing 660 titles, that had previously appeared in the October and November issues of the "Monthly list of additions." These lists were sent to branches for distribution to foreign readers and to their literary societies and clubs. A list of current periodicals both in English and in foreign languages received in the department was printed also and sent to the branches for distribution. An annotated list of Bohemian books in the library, containing 2,144 titles, has been compiled and will be published early in 1911.

A number of circulars have also been issued by the department calling the attention of foreign residents in certain districts of the city to the branches of their immediate neighborhoods. Circulars printed in Italian have been issued through the CHATHAM SQUARE, TOMPKINS SQUARE, HUDSON PARK, AGUILAR, 125TH STREET, and STAPLETON branches, circulars in Spanish through the JACKSON SQUARE branch, circulars in Hungarian through the HAMILTON FISH PARK and YORKVILLE branches, circulars in Yiddish and Chinese through the CHATHAM SQUARE branch.

In connection with the Budget exhibit described in the following section, the library published a small handbook of sixteen pages entitled "Facts for the Public" containing general information about the work of the reference and circulation departments, privileges of readers, hours of opening, special features of the work, and a directory of branches. This handbook was given out freely to the public at the Budget exhibit, and copies were sent to the branches for distribution.

BUDGET EXHIBIT.

In reviewing the work of the past year it is of interest to mention the joint exhibition arranged by the three library systems of Greater New York—the New York Public Library, the Brooklyn Public Library, and the Queens Borough Library—in connection with the Budget exhibit held by the city during the month of October. The scope of the library exhibit covered all phases of the work of interest to the general public. Graphic charts were shown giving detailed statements of cost of library maintenance, the taxpayers' share in this expense, and the per capita cost.

A number of photographs were placed on view showing exteriors and interiors of various types of branch buildings, both old and new, in different parts of the city. Photographs were also shown to illustrate the work with children. A part of the exhibit was devoted to the work done through travelling libraries, and included a map showing the location of travelling library stations in the entire city. Specimen travelling libraries, both for home and for general use, were shown. There were also exhibits of books, music, and periodicals for the blind, as well as a small collection of books designed for the instruction of foreigners in the languages, laws, customs, etc., of this country.

A popular part of the general exhibit was a collection of about 450 books showing what the libraries have to offer all classes of readers on topics of special and current interest, including such subjects as civics and government, technology, the useful arts, biography and travel.

Books Missing from the Shelves.

The number of books reported missing at branch inventories during the year, together with those recovered after a previous report of loss, appears in the following table:

| | MISSING FROM INVENTORY | RECOVERED | NET LOSS |
|---|---|---|---|
| Chatham Square | 449 | 281 | 168 |
| Seward Park | 663 | 28 | 635 |
| Rivington Street | 189 | 33 | 156 |
| Hamilton Fish Park | 471 | 25 | 446 |

| Mott Haven | 152 | 31 | 121 |
| High Bridge | 37 | 3 | 34 |
| Morrisania | 52 | 5 | 47 |
| Tremont | 116 | 7 | 109 |

| | MISSING FROM INVENTORY | RECOVERED | NET LOSS |
|---|---|---|---|
| Kingsbridge | 11 | ... | 11 |
| St. George | 30 | 3 | 27 |
| Stapleton | 15 | 2 | 13 |
| Port Richmond | 17 | 6 | 11 |
| Tottenville | 7 | 3 | 4 |
| Total | 7,038 | 1,738 | 5,300 |

The net loss as reported above shows a decrease of 516 as compared with 1909. This means a loss of seventy-one volumes for every hundred thousand circulated, as against eighty-two in 1909. In connection with this year's report, mention should be made of the effort on the part of the library to decrease losses through theft by obtaining the assistance of second-hand bookdealers throughout the city in preventing the disposal of our books by sale. In accordance with a vote of the circulation committee at its meeting in June, 1910, a circular, offering a reward of $25 to second-hand book dealers for evidence leading to the arrest and conviction of book thieves has been prepared and printed, and copies of this circular have been placed in the hands of all the second-hand book dealers in New York city. Gratifying cooperation has been shown by the dealers in this respect and the result has been the recovery of a considerable number of books.

Independent investigations have been made into twenty-five or thirty different cases of reported book thefts. Two convictions have been obtained, three cases were settled out of court to the satisfaction of the library, and in another case the delinquent had already been removed from the county by his family. In this connection acknowledgment should be made of the generous assistance and cooperation given by the police department and the district attorney's office. In the course of the investigations books from twelve other libraries have been recovered and returned to the owners.

Exhibitions.

The following exhibitions were furnished by the print department at Lenox for display in the wing frames at the circulation branches; the exhibit first named being on view from January to June, the second from July to December:

The following have been added to the wall case exhibits during the year:

The Ring of the Nibelungen. Fourteen studies in color by Hermann Hendrich.

Artist's proofs in color of the work of Frederic Remington.

The world in color, by Johannes Emmer. 120 photographic reproductions in natural color of scenes in Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy, and Switzerland.

Longmans' historical wall pictures. A series of twelve pictures illustrating British history from Roman times to the present day, reproduced in color from paintings from authentic sources by H. J. Ford.

Indians of North America. A series of sixty colored post cards illustrating life among the Indians of this continent.

Longmans' natural history wall pictures. Flowers, butterflies and moths. Ten plates reproduced in color from drawings by A. Thorburn.

The masters in color. Thirty-five plates representing the work of some of the masters in painting.

English water-colour. Thirty-eight reproductions of drawings by eminent painters edited by Charles Holme.

A series of twenty-four photographs of Russian scenes.

225 prints of old New York taken from Valentine's Manuals.

Exhibits loaned to branches by the Museum of Natural History during the past year included a collection of coral and sea-shells, a collection of Chinese games and toys, an exhibit of birds and butterflies, a collection of articles of industry from the Philippine Islands, a collection of relics of North American Indians, an exhibit of articles illustrating Mexican life and customs, and a collection of similar articles from Sicily.

Other exhibits were as follows:

At Staten Island branches: loans from the Staten Island Association of Arts and Sciences, including a collection of prints illustrating Indian life from original drawings made by an Indian boy; and an exhibit of lace and embroidery made by residents of the Island. Photographs of birds of Staten Island, loaned by Mr. Howard H. Cleaves. Eight engravings of English homes, and illustrations of airships by George Cruikshank given by Mr. Arthur Wallack. Reproductions of Italian masterpieces, loaned by Dr. A. Callisen. Reproductions of famous pictures of the Madonna and of masterpieces in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, loaned by Miss Gertrude Foster. An exhibit of aeroplane models, loaned by the Boys' Aero Club. Books illustrated by Walter Crane and Kate Greenaway, loaned by Mr. L. R. E. Paulin. Two portfolios containing prints of Dickens' characters, and views in Portugal, loaned by Mr. Sanderson Smith.

An exhibit of German and Norwegian dolls, loaned by Miss Ash.

A collection of photographs of Bronx views, loaned by Mr. E. B. Child.

A collection of twenty-five water-colors of butterflies, loaned by the Rev. Frederick Greaves.

A collection of oil paintings of various views in Russia, loaned by the artist, Mr. Alm. Ostrowsky.

An exhibit of cork, showing its growth and manufacture, and also carvings in cork in bas-relief, loaned by Messrs. Ferdinand Gutman & Co.

An exhibit of water-colors, loaned by Mr. H. A. Thorne.

Paintings of scenes in New York City, loaned by the artist, Mr. George Edwin Jackson.

Collection of etchings by various Bohemian artists, loaned by the Bohemian Club, "Slavia."

Illustrated bulletins of books on subjects of current or special interest have been made and posted in the various branches from time to time during the past year. Several of these bulletins, of more than usual merit, were shown at the Budget exhibit in October.

Public Lectures, Etc.

Lectures have been given in the Board of Education series of free evening lectures in the assembly rooms of the Hudson Park, Tompkins Square, 135th Street, Hamilton Grange, and Tremont branches, and in the reading-rooms of the Fifty-eighth Street, and Ninety-sixth Street branches. The courses were given as follows:

Hudson Park:

1. Eight lectures on American History:—Biography. (January 5-February 23.)
2. Nine lectures on the United States:—The West. (March 2-April 27.)
3. Six lectures on Asia, and five on Health Topics. (October 5-December 14.)

Tompkins Square:

1. Eight lectures on Literature. (January 5-February 23.)
2. Six lectures on Electricity, one on the Automobile, one on Aeronautics, and one on Physics. (March 2-April 27.)

Fifty-eighth Street:

1. Eight lectures on Sociology. (January 8-February 26.)
2. Five lectures on General History, and four on Economics. (March 5-April 30.)
3. One lecture on English Literature, and eleven on Art. (October 1-December 17.)

Ninety-sixth Street:

1. Eight lectures on Australia and the Pacific Islands, and eight on Chemistry. (January 6-February 28.)
2. Eight lectures on Shakespeare, seven on Architecture, one on Literature, and one on Psychology. (March 3-April 28.)
3. Eleven lectures on Africa, six on European History, and five on Economics. (October 3-December 15.)

135th Street:

1. Eight lectures on Europe. (January 4-February 22.)
2. Five lectures on English Literature, and four on New York History. (March 1-April 26.)
3. Eleven lectures on General History, and six on Life in the East. (October 4-December 13.)

Hamilton Grange:

1. Eight lectures on Music. (January 8-February 26.)
2. Nine lectures on Europe. (March 5-April 30.)
3. Eleven lectures on American History. (October 1-December 10.)

Tremont:

1. Eight lectures on History. (January 8-February 26.)
2. Six lectures on Government, and three on Economics. (March 5-April 30.)

Special reading lists on lecture subjects were compiled and posted during the year and several lists have been sent to other lecture centres, besides large numbers of lists prepared in the ordinary course of branch routine. Also, various collections of books have been made and displayed in connection with the lectures.

Branches in which these lectures were given have been kept open half an hour after the close of each lecture. The attendance at these lectures is given in the following table:

| BRANCH | NUMBER OF LECTURES | ATTENDANCE |
|---|---|---|
| Hudson Park | 28 | 2,519 |
| Tompkins Square | 17 | 905 |
| Fifty-eighth Street | 29 | 4,994 |
| Ninety-sixth Street | 55 | 7,305 |
| 135th Street | 28 | 4,278 |
| Hamilton Grange | 28 | 3,578 |
| Tremont | 17 | 1,739 |
| Total | 202 | 25,318 |

Other Activities.

In connection with the work of the library mention should be made of the use of branches for activities other than those strictly concerned with the circulation of books. During the past year the library has endeavored, so far as was practical, to cooperate with literary societies and clubs in various parts of the city by arranging for the use of branch assembly-rooms for meetings, lectures, and entertainments, the general stipulation being that such meetings should be free to the public.

Of special interest are the evening classes for foreigners in the study of the English language conducted under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. These classes were formed early last spring at three branches, two on the lower East-side and one on the upper East-side. Meetings were held twice a week, the Association providing the teacher, and in many instances the library supplying the books for study. Later in the year, the work was taken up at five additional branches. During the past summer similar classes were conducted for women at two branches, under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association. Branches at which these classes have been held report a decided increase in the demand for the simpler English books adapted to reading by foreigners.

Several literary and historical societies have used rooms at the branches for their meetings during the past year, among them being the Bohemian Club "Slavia," which has continued its semi-monthly meetings at the WEBSTER Branch for the discussion of Bohemian literature, history, and folk-lore, and the performance of Bohemian music; the City History Clubs, formed by young people for the study of the history and government of New York city, which have held meetings at four branches; and also battalions of "Boy Scouts" which were organized in the neighborhoods of several branches with permission to use the assembly-rooms of these branches for their meetings. Recently, arrangements have been completed whereby the Hungarian-American Free Lyceum, a society formed for the study of Hungarian literature and social questions, will hold its meetings at three branches during the coming year.

Following is a list of all such meetings held at various branches during the year 1910:

BUILDINGS.

The circulation department has opened no new branches in 1910, the total number remaining at forty, exclusive of the TRAVELLING LIBRARY OFFICE and the LIBRARY FOR THE BLIND now occupying temporary quarters in branch buildings. In the report for 1909 announcement was made of the approval by the city authorities and the Board of Trustees of seven new sites for additional branches, five located in Manhattan, and two in The Bronx. Beyond this approval no progress has been made, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on May 27, 1910, having referred the whole matter for opinion to the corporation counsel, in whose hands it now rests. In the meantime the options on the sites selected have expired.

Several branches, however, have undergone extensive repairs and alterations during the past year, the more important changes being as follows:

At the MORRISANIA branch the remodelling of the second floor for the new children's rooms, begun in the latter part of 1909, was completed. The assembly room that formerly took up the greater part of this floor became the children's circulation room, and a children's reference room was made out of the adult reading room that formerly occupied the rest of this second floor. Adult readers are now accommodated on the first floor in the section formerly used as the children's room. At the TREMONT branch similar alterations have been made. The HUDSON PARK branch has also been improved by the removal of the floor stacks from the children's room, and by other much needed changes.

Further mention of changes affecting children's rooms is made in the special report of the Supervisor of work with children printed above.

The JACKSON SQUARE branch has been thoroughly renovated and many alterations have been made, including the installation of electric light. The closed book-stacks formerly occupying the rear part of the ground floor have been cut down in heighth and moved forward and readers now have free access to all the shelves. The space thus cleared is used as reading and reference room for adults, and the rear part of the second floor formerly used for this purpose now forms the children's reference room.

In addition, the AGUILAR, YORKVILLE, TREMONT and OTTENDORFER branches have been re-decorated, and electric lighting has been installed in the last mentioned. Alterations were made to the entrance of the GEORGE BRUCE branch to allow for the widening of 42nd Street, and the change in the grade of Kingsbridge Avenue made it necessary to build a front retaining wall with steps to lead to the KINGSBRIDGE branch property; a retaining wall was also built at the 135TH STREET branch between the library and adjoining property.

On December 19 an explosion in the yards of the Grand Central Station caused considerable damage to the building in which the CATHEDRAL branch is located. Extensive repairs were necessary and the branch was closed for several weeks. Arrangements were made at once, however, to accommodate the readers temporarily at the 58TH STREET branch.

A detailed financial statement of repairs and alterations in all branches made during the past year is printed as Table XVI below.

General meetings of the staff have been held as usual through the year, at the HAMILTON GRANGE, LENOX, and 115TH STREET branches, and have been attended with their usual profit and interest.

In closing this review of the work of the past year I call attention to the interest and zeal shown by the staff. The work has been carried on under difficulties and much of its success is due to the unflagging loyalty of the individual workers

Very respectfully,

JOHN S. BILLINGS,
Director.

Gifts worthy of mention were received from: Azeez Khayat, fifty-five photographs of Syria; Boston Co-operative Building Company, fourteen annual reports; government of Bucharest, ten pamphlet documents; Denmark, Kommissionen for Havunder-sögelser, one volume and two pamphlets; Stuyvesant Fish, a photographic reproduction of a manuscript map of West Point and its Revolutionary fortifications by Major Villefranche, made from the original in the library of the United States Military Academy, of no little topographic interest and of added interest as one of the maps prepared for but not used in Marshall's Life of Washington; also copies of "A letter on the proposal to amend the Constitution of the United States dated New York, January 30, 1911," signed Stuyvesant Fish; Maurice Fornachon, thirty volumes, one pamphlet and two periodicals, all architectural works; Fairfax Harrison, a copy of his privately printed "Cato's farm management. Ecologues from the De Re Rustica of M. Porcius Cato, done into English, with notes of other excursions in the pleasant paths of agronomic literature, by a Virginia farmer," [Chicago], 1910; William Henry McGinty, his "Ancient Irish art and architecture," Boston, 1911; E. K. Milligan, thirteen volumes and thirteen pamphlets, relating to world languages; National Library of Wales, "Bibliotheca celtica, a register of publications relating to Wales and the Celtic peoples and languages for the year 1909," Aberystwyth, 1910; Hyacinthe Ringrose, a copy of his "The Inns of Court. An historical description of the Inns of Court and Chancery of England," Oxford, 1909; Dr. Albert Shaw, a copy of his "A cartoon history of Roosevelt's career," illustrated by 630 contemporary cartoons . . . New York, 1910.

At the Lenox branch "Paris in etching" and the Dürer Society's publications remained on view during the month and attracted much attention. On the occasion of the centenary of the birth of Horace Greeley there was added, in the lower hall, a selection from the Library's collection of portraits, caricatures, and other prints relating to his career.

At the Astor branch the reproductions of drawings by old masters in the print room of the Royal Museums in Berlin remained on view.

In connection with a course of lectures on Egypt given at the 58th Street branch during January and February, a collection of prints was placed in the reading-room illustrating Egyptian customs, past and present, and showing views of famous monuments and temples. Included in this collection were colored reproductions of paintings by Jules Guerin and Walter Tyndale, and also a number of sepia prints illustrative of various types of Egyptian architecture.

On Thursday, February 14th, His Excellency, Count Albert Apponyi, former Prime Minister of Hungary, visited the Hamilton Fish Park branch, 388 East Houston Street. He was accompanied by Mr. Andrew Carnegie and the Hungarian Consul. In 1909 Count Apponyi was instrumental in securing as a gift to the library a collection of 1,600 Hungarian books, including complete sets of the works of many prominent Hungarian poets and novelists, together with a number of important public documents. These books were placed at the Hamilton Fish Park branch, which is situated in a neighborhood populated by Hungarians.

The Cathedral branch, which was damaged by the explosion in the yards of the Grand Central station on December 19, 1910, and subsequently closed for repairs, was opened again to the public on Monday, February 27. The building has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired, and electric lighting installed.

In commemoration of the Hungarian national holiday, which is celebrated on March 15th, several Hungarian societies will hold meetings in the Yorkville and Hamilton Fish Park branches on Sunday afternoon, March 12th. The programmes will include the singing of national anthems and recitations from Hungarian poets.

On February 3rd there was a meeting in the assembly-room of the Hudson Park branch of the "Società di mutuo beneficio fra le donne Italiane" held under the auspices of the Greenwich House and the Richmond Hill House. The meeting was for social purposes, and the program for the evening provided recitations in Italian, music, and dancing. On February 17th a concert consisting of 'cello and vocal selections was given in the branch for people of the neighborhood by Mr. and Mrs. Schauffler. The attendance was 169.

John Merwin Carrère, of Carrère & Hastings, architects for the new central building for the New York Public Library, died March 1, 1911, from injuries received by an automobile accident on February 12. By direction of Park Commissioner Stover on the day of his funeral, Friday, March 3, the public was admitted to the entrance lobby of the new building where his body lay in state from 10 to 11 A. M.

Gifts worthy of mention were received from: Rev. G. W. Allen, six volumes of "The Seeker, a quarterly magazine devoted to the search for God," London (1905-1910); Rev. Louis A. Arthur, a copy of "Eunice Tripler, some personal recollections," privately printed at New York, 1910; Basil Brown, a copy of his privately printed "Supposed caricature of the Droeshout portrait of Shakespeare, with facsimile of the rare print taken from a very scarce tract of an Elizabethan poet," New York, 1911, (Notes on Elizabethan poets, no. 1); Universitetsbiblioteket, Copenhagen, five pamphlets, "Akademisk Skrifter, 1910," "Forelæsninger og Övelser ved Kjöbenhavns Universitet og den polytekniske Læreanstalt, 1910," etc.; Charles A. A. Düring, one volume, "Miniature musical copybook, containing organ and piano compositions current in the interim of the years 1846 to 1849, copied at Frankfort on the Main"; Dr. Saram R. Ellison, three pamphlets and thirty-three periodicals, relating to the subject of magic; M. Grinchenko, "Slovár Ukräinskoi Movi" by Boris Grinchenko, Kiev, 1909, four volumes, and memorials of Boris Grinchenko; Walter A. Hawley, a copy of his "The early days of Santa Barbara, California, from the first discoveries by Europeans to December, 1846," New York, 1910; Col. Henry L. Higginson, a copy of "The battle of Gettysburg," by Frank Aretas Haskell, Boston, [1908]; George Iles, one volume, "What is man," New York, 1906; H. W. Kent, "Catalogue of an exhibition of original and early editions of Italian books selected from a collection designed to illustrate the development of Italian literature," New York, Grolier Club, 1904; Sir Thomas Lauder-Brunton, seven pamphlets and three sheets, all relating to the "Boy scouts" in Great Britain; J. Pierpont Morgan, "The Golden Latin Gospels . . . in the library of J. Pierpont Morgan (formerly known as the 'Hamilton Gospels,' and sometimes as King Henry the VIIIth's Gospels) now edited for the first time, with critical introduction and notes, and accompanied by four full page facsimiles by H. C. Hoskier," New York, privately printed, 1910; and Colonial Secretary's office, Natal, twenty-five volumes and ninety-seven pamphlets, all relating to Natal.

At the Lenox branch the exhibition of "Paris in etching" and of the publications of the Duerer Society was continued until the closing of the building.

At the Astor branch plates from "Modern decorative art" (Wenzel) and from Mazerolle's "Les medailleurs français" were on view.

On Thursday, March 2nd, an aeroplane exhibit was held in the assembly-room of the Mott Haven branch by boys of the neighborhood. Models of the various types of aeroplanes including monoplanes and biplanes made by the boys, were shown and explained, and talks were given on the Bleriot and Wright machines.

The Hungarian-American Free Lyceum held a meeting at the Hamilton Fish Park branch on Thursday evening, March 2nd. Mr. Zipernowsky of the Pennsylvania Railroad lectured on "Rapid transit in large cities." Another meeting of the same society was held at the Yorkville branch on Thursday evening, March 16th, an illustrated lecture being given by Mr. Herbert L. Bridgman, Secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, on "Peary's conquest of the Pole."

On Saturday, March 18th, the Lenox branch was closed to readers preparatory to removal to the new building. The Astor branch will remain open until Saturday, April 15, when it likewise will be closed. It is hoped that the new building will be opened on May 23.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES ON THE DEATH OF JOHN MERVEN CARRÈRE.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees, held on April 12, 1911, the following minute was adopted relating to the late John Merven Carrère, of Carrère & Hastings, architects of the new central building of the Library:

"The death of John M. Carrère severs a relation which the Trustees of the New York Public Library have valued highly.

"The senior member of the firm of architects whose plans for the new Library Building were selected out of a large number submitted in competition, he has devoted himself untiringly for many years to the work of its construction.

"He was admirably fitted for such a task, not only by the technical skill that made him distinguished among the leaders of his profession, but by the possession of a broad public spirit and a sense of civic pride that led him to embrace with an enthusiasm all his own the opportunity of erecting in this great city a building which should be worthy of the lofty purposes of the institution and should fittingly represent the dignity and importance of the Municipality.

"To these qualities he added a clear and sound judgment, an exceptional degree of tact, an attractive personality and an unusual power of impressing upon all with whom he came in contact the conviction of his earnestness and sincerity.

"In a public enterprise of such magnitude, it was inevitable that many grave difficulties and obstacles should be encountered and that many complicated situations should arise demanding the exercise of a high order of judgment, tact and skill. To Mr. Carrère is due a large measure of the credit for overcoming the obstacles and solving the difficulties which have been met with in the progress of the work.

"Fortunately for the Library and for the City his life was spared until his task was completed. He was struck down in the fulness of his strength and the maturity of his powers; but not until the dreams which had filled his vision of the beautiful building that will now stand as a monument to his memory were fully realized."

REPORT FOR MAY

During the month of May there were received at the Library 29,178 volumes and 2,646 pamphlets, of which 2,546 volumes and 2,646 pamphlets were credited to the reference department and 26,632 volumes to the circulation department.

Of the reference department receipts, 1,370 volumes and 289 pamphlets were purchases, 1,145 volumes and 2,351 pamphlets were gifts, and 31 volumes and 6 pamphlets were exchanges. For the circulation department 26,321 volumes were purchases and 311 were gifts.

The reference department catalogued 4,402 volumes and 2,267 pamphlets; for this work were written 5,651 copy cards for the printer and 4,031 other cards; 1,500 cards had changes made for entries previously written or printed. In the printing office 4,804 titles were set, from which 47,071 cards were printed. For special catalogues 12,807 cards were written for the copying machine and from them 38,667 cards were manifolded.

The circulation department cataloguing force wrote 2,126 cards for the union catalogue, entered 3,439 volumes in the union catalogue and shelf list, classified 715 volumes. At the branches 14,131 cards were written.

Through the interbranch loan system 5,898 books were asked for and 4,624 were supplied.

In the main reading room of the central building 2,609 readers consulted 5,311 volumes. Special reading rooms in this building were used by 4,191 readers, making a total for the whole building of 6,800 readers.

Among the gifts of books received during the month mention may be made of the following: from John L. Cadwalader, "A catalogue of the first editions of the works of Alexander Pope (1688-1744) together with a collection of the engraved portraits of the poet," New York, The Grolier Club, 1911, and five mezzotints by Houston after Hayman, "The five senses;" Henry T. Clarke, eight pieces relating to the early history of Nebraska; the earl of Crawford, "Bibliotheca Lindesiana: volume 7, a bibliography of the writings, general, special and periodical, forming the literature of philately," Aberdeen, 1911; from Cleveland H. Dodge, three manuscript volumes of the minutes of proceedings of the peace convention held at Washington in February, 1861, these volumes covering the first eleven sessions, from February 4 to 18, and being apparently the minutes kept at the time by L. E. Chittenden from which he worked up his "Report of the debates and proceedings" printed at New York in 1864; from Mrs. Henry Draper, 127 volumes and ten pamphlets, together with wood blocks, copper and steel plates and electrotypes, relating to or by George Cruikshank, John Leech, Phiz and other English engravers of the same period; Mrs. Lucy Bronson Dudley, a copy of her "A writer's inkhorn," New York, 1910; Jorge de Frezals, a copy of "Las musas delante de Jesús, le Muse avanti a Gesú, fantasia arcadica del Arcade Jorge de Frezals con traduzione italiana dell' Arcade Francesco Sabatini y con dibujos de (e con disegni di) José Noguéy Massó," Roma, [1909]; William Welsh Harrison, his "Harrison Waples and allied families," Philadelphia, 1910; Miss Harriette A. Keyser, her "Bishop Potter, the people's friend," New York, 1910; Charles A. Montgomery, "The philosophy of the plays of Shakspere unfolded," by Delia Bacon with a preface by Nathaniel Hawthorne, London, 1857; J. M. Naylor, four volumes of the "New York Spectator;" Charles Poindexter, his "Richmond; an illustrated handbook of the city and battlefields," Richmond, 1907, and "Captain John Smith and his critics," Richmond, 1893; William Riddle, "One hundred and fifty years of school history in Lancaster, Pa." and "Nicholas Comenius or ye Pennsylvania school master of ye olden time," second edition, Lancaster, 1898; Mrs. Walter Shirlaw, 115 etchings, engravings, pen drawings, etc., by Walter Shirlaw; B. Singer, his "Patent and trade mark laws of the world," Chicago, 1911; D. M. Tipton, his "An honest effort," Wichita, Kansas, 1911; and Prof. Herbert C. Tolman, "Cuneiform supplement to the author's ancient Persian lexicon and texts," New York, 1910.

The most important event of the month was of course the opening of the new central building on Fifth avenue between Fortieth and Forty-second streets on the afternoon of May 23. An account of the proceedings on that occasion is given on the following pages. The first day of real use of the library came on Wednesday, the 24th, when the building was open to the public for inspection and use.

The steady stream of visitors on this first day gave unmistakable indication of the public interest in the building and the institution. Between nine in the morning and ten at night it is estimated that from thirty to fifty thousand people entered the doors. Discouragingly little could be done in the way of reading or study, so great was the crush of sightseers; but notwithstanding the crowd 315 readers were served in the main reading room, 654 volumes being provided for their use, and in the various special rooms 619 other readers were accommodated, making a total of 934.

The first book called for in the main reading room proved to be not in the catalogue, Delia Bacon's "Philosophy of the plays of Shakspere unfolded," called for by C. A. Montgomery of Brooklyn; it is a pleasure to record that Mr. Montgomery gave the library, a day or two later, his own copy of the work.

The first book delivered to a reader was N. Y. Grot's "Nravstvennye idealy nashevo vremeni" (Moral ideas of our time: Friedrich Nietzsche and Lev Tolstoi), called for by A. Shub of 1699 Washington Avenue; his slip was filed at 9:08 o'clock and the book was delivered to him at 9:15.

In the circulation room the first few days were occupied mainly with registration of applicants for the privilege of withdrawing books, over 1,800 applications being signed the first two days. On Wednesday, the 24th, 74 volumes were withdrawn for home use, all charged on cards issued by other branches. On the second day, Thursday, 209 volumes were circulated. For the eight days in May during which the library was open the circulation amounted to 2,244 volumes.

In the children's rooms 408 volumes were circulated in May, 117 being the largest number given out in a single day. Seventy-five children (forty-two boys and thirty-three girls) were registered, only two of them ever having taken books at any branch; books were issued to about 100 children holding cards at other branches. It is interesting to note that about fifty per cent. of the children are from the neighborhood of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street.

The record for the eight days during which the library was open in May shows a count of 2,609 readers in the main reading room, 4,191 in the special rooms, a total of 6,800; the number of volumes consulted in the main room was 5,311. The average number of readers in the main room was 326 per day, in the whole building 850 per day; the average number of volumes consulted in the main reading room was 664 per day. In May 1910 the average number of readers calling for books at the Astor and Lenox buildings was 502.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE OPENING OF THE NEW BUILDING OF THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY, ASTOR LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS, TUESDAY, MAY 23, 1911.

INTRODUCTORY

The early history of the foundation of the corporation known as The New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations, was set out in the first number of the Library Bulletin of January, 1897, pages 3 to 21, in which the selection of a permanent site for "the future great library of the consolidated corporation" was discussed; and the action of the Legislature, the Mayor of the City of New York, the Governor of the State and the Board of Aldermen, in reference to placing the site of the former reservoir at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street at the disposal of the Department of Parks for the erection of a building for the use of this corporation, is fully stated.

By Chapter 556 of the Laws of 1897, the authorities of the City of New York were authorized to construct a public building on the site of the reservoir, within the legal limits of Bryant Park, such building when completed to be occupied by this corporation under a contract with the City. The lease or agreement, contemplated by the act, was eventually entered into on December 6, 1897, but owing to various legal difficulties which arose out of the consolidation of the former Cities of New York and Brooklyn and other municipalities, the execution of the work was considerably delayed. It was not until the Spring of 1899 that a contract was entered into for the removal of the reservoir.

The history of the preparation of plans, and the selection of Messrs. Carrère & Hastings as architects, by means of a competition, will be found published in the annual reports of the Director of the Library of July 1, 1898, and July 1, 1899. The subsequent annual reports of the Director give an adequate account of the progress of the building.

On August 26, 1901, the contract for the construction of the building was executed; but again the commencement of actual work was delayed by legal difficulties. On November 10, 1902, it had so far progressed that the cornerstone was laid on that date, under the direction of the President of the Park Department, in the presence of a large number of invited guests. The exercises consisted of an invocation by the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, Rector of Grace Church, and an address by Mr. John Bigelow, President of The New York Public Library, which were followed by the laying of the cornerstone, with an address by the Hon. Seth

Low, Mayor of the City of New York, and finally by a benediction by the Most Rev. John M. Farley, Archbishop of New York.

By August 27, 1907, the work on the exterior of the building was completed. A contract for the interior finish previously had been let on April 19, 1907. By the close of the year 1909 the construction work on the building was substantially finished, all that remained to be done being the work on the approaches and the equipment of the building,—including the machinery, the electric plant and the furniture, all of which were to be supplied by the City. The final contract for furniture was let early in 1910, and the period for the completion of this contract was then fixed for May 15, 1911.

Early in the year 1911 it became apparent that the contractor would be able to have substantially all the furniture in place and the building ready for occupation by the required date, and although some minor details of no essential importance would probably not be finished, it was believed that the building might be thrown open to public use during the month of May. The Trustees, therefore, at their January meeting, decided that the ceremonies of the formal opening should take place on Tuesday, May 23, 1911, being the sixteenth anniversary of the agreement of consolidation of the Astor and Lenox Libraries and the Tilden Trust, and a Committee was appointed to take charge of the arrangements for the proposed ceremonies.

In accordance with this resolution, invitations to attend the ceremonies were sent to the President and Vice-President of the United States and the heads of the federal departments; to the Governor and Lieutenant Governor of the State of New York, the Speaker of the Assembly and the heads of the State departments; to the Mayor of the City of New York and the heads of the City departments; to the Presidents of the principal colleges and universities in the Eastern part of the United States; to the Librarians of the principal libraries in the country; and to the Presidents of the principal art societies, professional organizations and clubs of the City. Invitations were also sent to members of the judiciary, the clergy, the editors of the principal newspapers, the commanding officer at Governor's Island and his staff, the commanding officer at the Brooklyn Navy Yard and his staff, and representatives of the families of John Jacob Astor, James Lenox and Samuel J. Tilden. A limited number of members of the families and of the friends of the Trustees of the Library also were invited, together with members of the families of deceased Trustees, and persons who had made gifts to the Library or who had been actively connected with the work of the circulating libraries which were absorbed into The New York Public Library at various times.

The ceremonies were held in the rotunda of the new building on Fifth Avenue, about six hundred persons being present. A small temporary platform was constructed under the central arch on the West side of the rotunda, facing the Fifth Avenue entrance.

At two o'clock in the afternoon the Trustees, the Director, the Assistant Director and a few invited guests, having assembled in the Trustees' room on the second floor, proceeded in procession from the Trustees' room to the platform. The order of the procession was as follows:

Dr. John S. Billings and Mr. Edwin H. Anderson
Mr. John Henry Hammond and Mr. John W. Alexander
Mr. Henry W. Taft and Mr. Edward W. Sheldon
Mr. Cleveland H. Dodge and Mr. Justice Samuel Greenbaum
Mr. Andrew Carnegie and Mr. William W. Appleton
Mr. George W. Smith and Mr. Charles Howland Russell
Mr. George L. Rives
Mr. John L. Cadwalader and Mr. Frederick Sturges
Mr. Thomas Hastings and the President of the Park Board
Bishop Greer and Archbishop Farley
The Mayor of the City of New York and Mr. Lewis Cass Ledyard
The Governor of the State of New York and Mr. Morgan J. O'Brien
The Governor's Aide, Lt. Commander DeKay
The President of the United States and Mr. John Bigelow
The President's Secretary, Mr. Hilles, and the President's Aide, Major Butt.

The Trustees and their guests being seated on the platform the proceedings were then begun by prayer.

PRAYER BY THE RIGHT REVEREND DAVID HUMMELL GREER, D.D., BISHOP OF NEW YORK

Oh, Eternal God and Heavenly Father, King of Peace, Lord of Love and the Almighty Ruler of Nations. We bless and magnify Thy glorious name, for all the great things which Thou hast done for us. We thank Thee for the goodly heritage which Thou hast given us; for the civil and religious privileges which we enjoy, and for the multiplied manifestations of Thy favor towards us. For these and all Thy mercies, may we show our thankfulness, not only with our lips but in our lives, by a reverence for and obedience to Thy just and righteous laws, as they have been revealed and discovered to us through the wisdom of the past, or as we ourselves, with open minds and humble hearts, may learn them. For this purpose and to this end we dedicate to-day this treasure house of knowledge. May it be to us and to those who shall come after us a centre of light and learning, to enlarge our vision, to illumine our minds, to enrich our memories, to quicken and inspire us with high and noble thoughts and great and pure ideals. Thus may it become our fortress and defence, to guard and protect us, to save and redeem us from ignorance and error; to make us wise with a wisdom that is stronger than weapons of war; to make us free with the freedom which the truth gives. Here within these walls may we hold communion with whatsoever things are just and right and true and of good report, and thinking on these things may we learn to love them and so to build and rest on sure and strong foundations; that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety, may be established among us for all generations.

All of which we ask in the name of Him whose life is the light of the world, our Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

HISTORICAL ADDRESS BY MR. GEORGE L. RIVES

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Somebody once asked Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes at what time a child's education ought to begin, and he made the rather unexpected reply that it ought to begin about two hundred years before the child was born. In the same way I find myself compelled in tracing the prenatal influences in the historical development of this Library, to go back,—not quite two hundred years, but as far as the end of the American Revolution.

We all remember, of course, that the British evacuated this City on the twenty-fifth of November, 1783, and in that same month there sailed from the port of London a young German immigrant, just twenty years old, whose name was John Jacob Astor. He came to the United States with a capital consisting of a very few pounds in English money and seven flutes—for he intended to embark in the business of selling musical instruments. He discovered, however, that selling musical instruments was a much less lucrative occupation in the United States of the eighteenth century, than the buying and selling of furs; and to the fur trade Astor devoted himself with an ability and a perseverance which very soon enabled him to acquire what was then regarded as a large fortune.

I am afraid that if he had lived at the present time he would have merited the now discredited title of a captain of industry. He entered into contracts and combinations with other persons engaged in commerce between the States and with the Indian tribes, which were of a kind that I suspect, Mr. President, would attract nowadays the highly unfavorable attention of my friend the Attorney General. He was certainly engaged in monopolizing or attempting to monopolize some part of that trade; for what he was really trying to do was to establish in the United States a great corporation which should rival in its power and in the extent of its business the most powerful monopoly in the world—the Hudson Bay Company of England. His operations embraced not only the greater part of the territory then belonging to the United States, but extended over the whole world. His plan, which was fully developed in the year 1811, embraced as one of its principal features the establishment of a trading post at the mouth of the Columbia River in Oregon, where furs were to be collected and from which they were to be shipped by his own vessels to China; and there they were to be exchanged for tea, porcelains and silks, to be brought again to the port of New York. In those simple and distant days this was regarded as an enterprise worthy of the commendation of good citizens, and the history of Astoria, written by his friend and executor, Washington Irving, still possesses perennial charm.

Astor's most ambitious project was to a great extent a failure. But the fact that an American company had taken possession for trading purposes of land upon the Columbia River was one of the principal features in the case which the American Government was able to present against England in the long controversy over the ownership of the Pacific Coast between California and Alaska; and it is largely to Astor that the United States owes its ownership to-day of the States of Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

But Astor's great fortune, although founded in the fur trade, was acquired not so much in that business, as through his unwavering and well-founded belief in the future of the City of New York. His profits from other sources were regularly invested in the purchase of land upon this island, and he made by the improvement in values in City property ten times over what he made in trade.

He was a man without much education except what he had acquired in the hard school of early poverty and constant contact with the world, but he was a man who thoroughly appreciated learning and the society of men of letters, and he seems to have conceived long before his death the idea of founding in the City of New York a public library which would do for the citizens of our metropolis what the public libraries of Europe had done for their people. By a codicil to his Will, dated in 1839, nine years before his death, he declared that "desiring to render a public benefit to the City of New York and to contribute to the advancement of useful knowledge and the general good of society," he gave four hundred thousand dollars to be expended in the erecting of a suitable building, in defraying the necessary expenses of the accommodation of persons consulting the library, and in supplying the same from time to time with books, maps and other things pertaining to a library for general use "upon the most ample scale and liberal character."

Four hundred thousand dollars was an immense sum at the time and the place where it was given, and was indeed the largest gift of money for a public purpose that had been known in this State, or perhaps in the United States, up to the year 1839. If it seems small at the present day it must be remembered that—as Mr. Evarts once said of an alleged feat of General Washington's—a dollar went much farther in those days.

For many years the Astor Library existed and prospered as one of the great institutions of the City of New York; and as its means were trebled by the son and the grandsons of the founder, it was enabled, in spite of the growth of other libraries here and elsewhere, to maintain a high rank among the libraries of the world.

The second of the persons whom the Trustees and users of this library must always hold in grateful remembrance is James Lenox, a man who in every possible relation in life exhibited a strong contrast to John Jacob Astor. Mr. Lenox was a native of this City, of Scotch descent, born to a comfortable fortune and having all the advantages which good schools and the College of New Jersey at Princeton could afford him. His father was a merchant in this City, and in his father's counting-house James Lenox acquired those habits of industry and precision which stood him in good stead when he came to embark in what proved to be the real business of his life. In one respect only did his career parallel that of Mr. Astor. His father had acquired a farm of some thirty acres, situated, as he described it in his will, near the five-mile stone,—that is to say, in the neighborhood of Seventieth Street and Fifth Avenue, which, he went on to say in his will, he believed would in time become the site of a considerable village. I need not point out how the growth of the City has justified his expectations.

After his father's death in 1840, James Lenox retired from business, and when he was a little more than forty years old devoted himself with an ardor, a persistence and an amount of personal labor which is almost incredible, to the acquisition of works of art and of rare books and manuscripts. His first collections of books were in the field of early printed works, many of them block books made before the invention of movable type. He also formed a great and probably quite unique library of Bibles in every language and of every age; but what was perhaps his most useful contribution to the cause of learning was his bringing together nearly every edition and translation of the original narratives of discovery, exploration, settlement and history of North and South America, from the time of Columbus to the year 1700. Since his death, it has been possible to enlarge and supplement his collection until it stands to-day probably unrivaled in the world.

I cannot do better than to read some extracts from recollections of Mr. Lenox by one who was long associated with him. "Mr. Lenox," says Henry Stevens, "was a man of few words and few intimate friends, but of varied information, much studious reading, extensive correspondence and many books. He was a pattern of industry, method and good management. He was ever most generous and charitable, but he manifested a dislike of being indebted to strangers or neighbors for hints as to his public or private duties; nor would he tolerate any interference in his own charitable impulses. He always appeared diffident (almost bashful), simple-hearted, generous, kind, very pious, very retiring and very close-mouthed to outsiders, but as communicative as a child to his intimates; and especially to those in sympathy with his projects and pursuits.

"Mr. Lenox shunned notoriety with the same ardor that others sought it; but when it overtook him, as it frequently did, in spite of his reserve, he bore it with Christian fortitude and silence, even avoiding to read the newspapers that heralded his praises. He tolerated no interviewers or curiosity seekers, and his own door was seldom opened to visitors except by appointment."

Mr. Lenox was never married, and as his life began to draw to a close he perceived the necessity of founding an institution in which his accumulations of so many years should be preserved and, if possible, added to. He, therefore, began the erection of a library building on the farm he had inherited from his father, and he procured the passage of an act of the Legislature constituting a corporation to be known as "The Trustees of the Lenox Library." The charter of the Astor Library was Chapter 1 of the Laws of 1849. The charter of the Lenox Library was Chapter 2 of the Laws of 1870; and the recording angel has doubtless long since placed to the credit of William M. Tweed, deceased, the fact that he introduced and procured the passage of the latter piece of legislation.

For ten years after the incorporation of his library Mr. Lenox continued to share in its management assisted by his old friend, Mr. George H. Moore, for many years the Librarian of the Historical Society of New York, who did much towards the classification and arrangement of Mr. Lenox's treasures and the completion of his collections. But Mr. Moore —for no man is perfect—was possessed by the idea, which Mr. Lenox doubtless in a measure shared, that a public library was a sort of safe deposit vault, to which access was to be denied except for the few who possessed the most unimpeachable vouchers. I need hardly say that long before the Lenox Library ceased to exist as a separate institution, this policy, which was probably wise in the Library's earliest days, had been discarded.

Such, to quote again from Stevens's reminiscences, "was James Lenox of New York, who died on the seventeenth of February, 1880, at the age of eighty, the bibliographer, the collector, the founder of one of the most valuable public libraries in the New World, the philanthropist, the builder of churches, the establisher of a large public hospital, the giver to New York of a Home for Aged Women, the dispenser of untold silent charity and the benefactor of his native City and his honored country."

The third name which figures in the title of this Library corporation, is that of Samuel J. Tilden, a native of Columbia County in this State, and for nearly the whole of his long and active life a resident of this City. Mr. Tilden's ancestry was English, and on his father's side he traced it back for many generations in the old country in the pleasant County of Kent. His people, however, had been among the earliest immigrants to the United States and had long been settled in New England.

Mr. Tilden's life, at least in later years, was so closely connected with the public history of this State and this nation that it is almost superfluous to attempt, in the present company, any account of his career. It is enough to say that he studied law—his studies being much delayed by ill-health; that he was admitted to the bar when he was twenty-seven years old; and that for about thirty years he carried on a practice in this City, which grew continually larger and more lucrative, and which involved his employment by the greatest corporations in the country. "Since the year 1855," says his biographer, Mr. John Bigelow, "it is safe to say that more than half of the great railway corporations North of the Ohio and between the Hudson and Missouri Rivers were at some time his clients... It was here that his legal attainments, his marvellous skill as a financier, his capacity for concentrated labor, his constantly increasing weight of character and personal influence, found full activity, and resulted in the reorganization of the larger part of that great network of railways, upon conditions by which the rights of all parties were equitably protected, wasting litigation avoided, and a condition of great depression and despondency in railway property succeeded by an unexampled prosperity."

During all these years Mr. Tilden's interest in public affairs had been keen and constant. When almost in his boyhood he formed an intimate friendship with Martin Van Buren, and he followed Van Buren's lead in organizing the Democratic party in the North in favor of the free-soil movement. During the Civil War he was one of the large party of war Democrats who stood steadfastly for the support of the Union.

In 1846 and again in 1867 he was a delegate to the State Constitutional Conventions. He was for some years Chairman of the State Democratic Committee. But it was not until Mr. Tilden was approaching the age of sixty that he began to take that conspicuous part in public affairs which made him so striking a figure in the State and Nation.

The frauds of the Tweed Ring in 1870 were the occasion for the display of Tilden's slowly maturing powers. "I will lead," he exclaimed, "where any dare to follow. I will follow where any dare to lead;" and with some personal risk to himself, and with a vast expenditure of time and labor, energy and skill, he carried through the great movement which utterly wrecked the combination of criminals who had held the City of New York for years in their grasp. The distinguished part which he bore in the work of municipal reform in the City of New York made him the unquestioned leader of his party in the State, and in the Autumn of 1874 he was elected Governor of the State. In that office he continued his useful efforts in support of honest and efficient administration, and in the autumn of 1876 he was nominated for the Presidency of the United States by an overwhelming vote of the Democratic Convention.

The results of the election of 1876 are too fresh in the recollection of us all to call for anything more than a passing allusion. Mr. Tilden was not inaugurated President; and after the early part of the year 1877 his more active connection with public affairs may be said to have ceased.

Like Mr. Lenox, Mr. Tilden was never married, but, as Bacon puts it, "Memory, Merit, and Noble workes, are proper to Men: And surely a Man shall see, the Noblest workes, and Foundations, have proceeded from Childlesse Men; which have sought to expresse the Images of their Minds; where those of their Bodies have failed: So the care of Posterity, is most in them, that have no Posterity." It was, therefore, in Mr. Tilden's mind to devote the residue of his large fortune "to establish and maintain a free library and reading room in the City of New York," and by his Will, he provided in some detail for a corporation to be created by his executors and trustees to be known as the Tilden Trust, which was to have power to carry out his wishes in this regard.

Mr. Tilden died in 1886, about two years after the making of his Will, and although the Legislature acted promptly in creating the corporation which he had designed, the Courts ultimately, and after a long series of debates, declared the provisions of the Will to be illegal and void for uncertainty. The residuary estate of Mr. Tilden would, therefore, have passed entirely into the hands of his relatives had it not been for a wise and fortunate compromise agreement with some of them, by which more than two million dollars was ultimately saved to the Tilden Trust.

This was indeed a melancholy falling off from the noble benefaction which Mr. Tilden had intended, but looking back over the period of now nearly twenty years which separates us from the time when the compromise was made and the case finally determined by the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, it may well be asked whether the result has not proved a great advantage to the cause which Mr. Tilden had at heart; namely, the establishment of such a free library system "as would best serve the interests of science and education, and place the best literature of the world within easy reach of every class and condition of people in our commercial metropolis, without money and without price."

When the Trustees of the Tilden Trust found that the greater part of the funds intended for them had passed out of their reach, it was their plain duty to look about and consider what could best be done to carry out, in some measure, the purposes which Mr. Tilden had so much at heart. They could count upon the property to the value of something over two million dollars, and they possessed a library of books numbering fifteen or twenty thousand volumes. It was perfectly obvious that with these resources no public library worthy of the name could be established in the metropolis. At the same time the Astor Library with its fine general collection of books was pursuing a useful but relatively modest task. The Lenox Library, three miles away, possessed a noble and almost priceless collection of books in certain lines, but it was by no means a general library and was very far indeed from being an institution for popular use.

Both the Astor and Lenox Libraries, moreover, were hampered by the fact that they possessed very inadequate endowments. Their income literally permitted them to do little more than to heat and clean their buildings. They were unable to expend any substantial sums of money in the purchase of new books. Their catalogues were extremely imperfect, for they could not pay the services of cataloguers. Both libraries had to be closed at night, for neither the Astor nor the Lenox had money enough to pay the expenses of keeping open after dark.

Under these circumstances the thoughts of Mr. Tilden's Trustees naturally turned toward the possibility of a consolidation of the three institutions, and in 1892, the year after the decision of the Court of Appeals, they procured an act of the Legislature to be passed authorizing the consolidation of library corporations in the City of New York. There were, however, a number of difficulties to be overcome before their projects could assume a definite shape. There was some desultory discussion from time to time, but it was not until the early spring of 1895 that the Trustees of the three institutions concerned really took up in earnest the question of uniting their resources, for the greater good of the people of this City and of the Union.

In those discussions I had the good fortune to take part, and it is but just to record that there was no feeling upon the part of anyone, except that of desiring to do the very best that could be done in carrying out the objects for which all libraries must exist—the furtherance of science and art and the education and recreation of the people. Personal considerations, family considerations, the natural desire of preserving the identity of the separate corporations, were all subordinated to the great end of furthering the public interest; and though many details had to be considered and worked out, the meetings of the representatives of the three corporations were so absolutely harmonious, and all were so devoted to the accomplishment of a definite purpose, that the business was transacted with great ease and great rapidity. On the twenty-third of May, 1895—sixteen years ago this day—the agreement of consolidation was duly executed and The New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations, came into being.

The new corporation, in addition to the Astor and Lenox Library buildings, possessed some vacant and unproductive land, some millions of dollars' worth of income-producing property, and three hundred and fifty thousand volumes of books. Thus far, the books were only available for purposes of reference or research. The task of making large additions to the Libraries, and of administering them at the same time so as to be most readily available to the public, was something that evidently was quite beyond the means of the Trustees, if they were to rely solely on the funds then in their hands. Nearly half the annual income of the corporation had to be expended in heating, lighting, cleaning and repairing the buildings, even if they were kept open only during the hours of daylight; and this left but a moderate sum with which to complete and maintain and add to the collections of books. What the latter task amounted to may be estimated from the fact that while The New York Public Library had three hundred and fifty thousand volumes, the British Museum had a million and three-quarters and the National Library of France nearly three millions. It was the far-reaching ambition of the Trustees to place The New York Public Library upon a par with the greatest libraries in the world—if not in the mere number of volumes, at least in the high quality and wide and general scope of those which it did possess, and in the liberality and efficiency with which they were placed at the service of the people.

In order to accomplish their purposes the Trustees were therefore compelled to look either to private generosity, or to the liberality of the public; but all the precedents in the other States of this Union and in the other countries of the world suggested that the public ought to have at least a share in carrying forward the great and useful task which the consolidated library was prepared to undertake.

There existed at that time upon this spot the abandoned Murray Hill reservoir, which more than fifty years before had been constructed as a part of the Croton water system, but whose usefulness had long been outlived. The site of the reservoir appeared admirably suited for a central library; but there were serious difficulties in the way. The land on which the reservoir stood, had originally been a part of the common lands of the City of New York which had been granted by the Crown to the Corporation, under the Dongan Charter of 1686. It had been held by the Courts that the State had no power to dispose of this land, and it was also the law that the Corporation of the City, without legislative authority, was unable to act in the matter; so that it became necessary first to procure an enabling act of the Legislature, and then to persuade the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City that it would be for the benefit of all the people to remove the old Croton reservoir and devote the ground upon which it stood to a reservoir of learning and art. The task was not altogether an easy one. The Board of Aldermen of the City could not quickly be convinced; but ultimately—eighteen months or more after the Public Library had been formed—the City authorities did vote for the removal of the reservoir.

The next step was to induce the City to undertake the construction of the building. Excellent precedents existed in the aid which the City had given to the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the American Museum of Natural History. Again an act of the Legislature became necessary, and as soon as the City authorities were vested by law with the requisite authority, negotiations with the City for the construction of a building went forward with considerable rapidity. In the Spring of 1897, two years after the consolidation of the three original libraries had been carried through, preparations were begun for an architectural competition to decide upon the plans. On Election Day of 1897,—the day on which Judge Van Wyck was elected Mayor,—the jury for the selection of plans held their final meeting, and the designs, which are now at last embodied in stone and steel, in this building in which we are, were finally approved. One of the last acts of the administration over which Mayor William L. Strong presided was to sign the various papers by which the City entered into a contract to construct this building and to employ as its architects the firm of Carrère & Hastings.

A few words as to the agreement are necessary. The City undertook thereby to build and equip this building. In return, the Library

Corporation undertook that it would place and arrange in the building, as soon as practicable after completion, the whole of its library and collections. It was also agreed that the library should be accessible at all reasonable hours and times for general use, free of expense, to all persons resorting thereto; that it should be open morning and evening on every day of every week, including holidays; and that, in addition to the reference libraries of the Astor and Lenox buildings, there should be a free circulating branch to be kept open on Sundays and all other evenings, up to at least ten o'clock at night. By this agreement the library gained a noble and spacious home situated in the very heart and most accessible centre of the metropolis; but the City gained, for the mere cost of a building, the inestimable advantage of having the private funds of the Library Corporation expended for the support and maintenance and increase of a great public library, which was certain to become in time one of the very first libraries of the world, and which was to be maintained and added to from generation to generation and forever, without expense to the public. Both parties—the City and the Library—were to contribute money and property of very great value; both parties were united in carrying forward a work of the utmost benefit to the citizens of the metropolis; and I confess I do not know of any agreement more far-reaching in its benefits or more honorable and satisfactory to each of the parties, than this agreement between the City of New York and The New York Public Library.

During the period which has elapsed since the Astor and Lenox Libraries united with the Tilden Trust, the consolidated library has by no means stood still. At the beginning of the present year, the total number of volumes in the Astor and Lenox libraries available for use amounted to over eight hundred thousand and the pamphlets to over three hundred thousand—so that the number of pieces in the collection has nearly tripled in sixteen years. It has also been made more available for general use by cataloguing, and the catalogues now contain nearly three million cards. Not only has the number of books been added to and their quality well kept up, but the periodicals in which all the latest inventions and discoveries of science and art are recorded, are kept for use in ever-increasing numbers. The library now receives over seven thousand current periodicals. It has also recently undertaken the collection of engravings and etchings, on the lines of the print collection of the British Museum.

But by far the most striking growth in the work of the corporation, has been in the direction of popular use by the means of its great system of circulating branches. It is now and always was the unchanging purpose of the Trustees to make The New York Public Library available for the use of scholars, and also to make it, in the largest and most liberal sense, an institution for the use of all the people, of all ages and of all nationalities. That purpose they were enabled in some measure to carry out by taking over the work of the New York Free Circulating Library and other institutions which carried on similar enterprises, but it was not until one of our own Trustees, Mr. Andrew Carnegie, made his great gift to the City, which induced the City authorities in their turn to embark upon a most far-reaching and generous policy, that we were able to establish the great system of branch libraries which now exist under the control of our corporation in what was the old City of New York and in Staten Island.

Of the circulating work of this corporation and of the liberality of Mr. Carnegie this is not the time to speak at length. This building, which we are here to inaugurate to-day, is intended in part only for circulation purposes. Nor can I speak now of the many other splendid contributions to our means and collections which have helped to make this institution what it is. But I cannot forbear mentioning with profound gratitude the gift of another Trustee, the late Mr. John S. Kennedy, who left us a large share of his very ample fortune.

With the means that we now possess, arising in part from the benefactions of the founders; in part from the sale of the Lenox Library and the surrounding land; in part from the expected sale of the Astor Library property; and in large part from the liberality and generosity of Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Kennedy and other benefactors, we shall be enabled to carry on the work of this institution upon at least an adequate scale. The vast collections which are assembled under the roof of this noble building, are certain to grow in something like a geometric ratio and, if properly administered, will be of increasing value as time goes on to all the people, not only of this City and State, not only of this Nation, but of all the World.

How great their opportunities are, the Trustees fully realize; and I am sure that they feel profoundly the immense responsibility they have incurred in the discharge of this trust. It is given to few men to realize their dreams; but we have been so fortunate as to have succeeded thus far beyond our most sanguine hopes. None of us, sixteen years ago, could have looked forward to this splendid result of our labors. Non nobis Domine, must be our Psalm. If we had not been generously supported by the enlightened intelligence of the people of this imperial City, we should have failed; and if we are sometimes tempted to look with mistrust to the future we are encouraged and sustained by the conviction that that same public sentiment, in all quarters of the community, will certainly enable us to go forward in the work that is now so auspiciously begun.

DELIVERY OF THE KEY OF THE BUILDING BY MR. THOMAS HASTINGS, OF CARRÈRE AND HASTINGS, THE ARCHITECTS OF THE BUILDING

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In presenting Commissioner Stover the key of the New York Public Library, I desire to remind you of how closely associated with the occasion is the memory of my late partner, John Merven Carrère, whose executive and administrative ability have so largely contributed to the architecture of this building.

He, too, would wish to have expressed our appreciation of the intelligent co-operation of all the contractors, and the genuine interest that so many working men have shown in their part of the undertaking, an interest and enthusiasm stimulated by the love of doing their work, and in many cases by their interest in the welfare of this Institution.

ADDRESS BY THE HON. CHARLES B. STOVER, COMMISSIONER OF PARKS OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Mr. President, Mr. Chairman, Mr. Mayor, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In accepting the key of this building from Mr. Hastings, one of its architects, it seems fitting that I, the President of the Park Board, should recount those early legal steps, whereby the City and the Library Corporation were united in the large co-operative enterprise which to-day flowers in the marble pile we are assembled to dedicate.

Fourteen years have elapsed, since by an act of the State Legislature, the Department of Parks was authorized to remove the Reservoir, once occupying the eastern portion of Bryant Park, and to erect, construct, maintain, equip and furnish a library building, in accordance with plans to be made and prepared by the Trustees of the New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations, and to be approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

On December 1st, 1897, the latter Board authorized and requested the Department of Parks to remove the Reservoir and to erect, construct, maintain, equip and furnish the proposed library, in accordance with the plans approved that day by the Board of Estimate. Further the Department of Parks was then authorized and requested to employ Messrs. Carrère and Hastings, the authors of the said plans, as architects, to prepare the detailed drawings, and forms of contract and specifications, and to superintend the erection of said building.

On December 6th, 1897, the Park Board adopted resolutions, for the employment of Messrs. Carrère and Hastings as architects, in accordance with the contract submitted by the Corporation Counsel, and that day approved by the Park Board and ordered to be executed.

On December 8th, 1897, an agreement was made and concluded by and between the City of New York and the New York Public Library, by which it is stipulated that the City shall annually provide funds for the maintenance and repair of the building and that the Department of Parks shall at all times provide and care for the roads, walks, fences, grading and general care of the grounds and appurtenances.

It was likewise stipulated in this agreement that said library shall be accessible for general use, free of expense, to persons resorting thereto, and also that one or more reading-rooms shall be open and accessible to the public every day in the week, including all legal and public holidays, from at least 9 o'clock A. M. until at least 9 o'clock P. M., and on Sundays from 1 o'clock P. M. until 9 o'clock P. M.; and further that at all times there shall be established and maintained in this library a free circulating branch.

In this interesting agreement, it is also stipulated that the City shall never have any right, title, property or interest in the library collections; neither shall the New York Public Library Corporation, by reason of its use and occupation of the building, acquire any right, title, property or interest in said building or the land on which the same is erected, except in so far as expressly granted by this agreement.

Our great Public Library stands in a public park. Let it be remembered that prior to 1896, this portion of Bryant Park was occupied for many years by the old Murray Hill Reservoir, under the jurisdiction of the Croton Aqueduct Board. As if to compensate the City for the loss of a portion of the park, the architects have laid out an esplanade to the rear of the library, whose structural lines make the building melt into the park. By the beauty of its balustrades, its wide-spreading mosaic floor, its singularly chaste canopy above the Bryant Statue, whose beautiful lines are brought out clearly against a dark background of cypresses, the architects have so enriched our park system that New Yorkers can invite the whole world to come and admire this remarkable feature of the library. As for the remaining untouched portion of the park, may it ever be a park, unencumbered by any building, but so transformed that in consonance with the work of Messrs. Carrère and Hastings, the park shall become so beautiful that those who will may find in it a little wood of the Muses.

The fourteen years of contact of the Park Department with Messrs. Carrère and Hastings have ever been harmonious. Through the terms of five Mayors, eight successive presidents of the Park Board have given willing aid to the architects in their great undertaking.

As for him, who is not here to-day, I desire to say that my year of official relationship with John M. Carrère has made his untimely death a personal loss, so effulgent was his rare spirit. Though we mourn his loss to-day, still we know

> "He could not perish! He but sank from sight,
> As sinks the sun, effulgent in its sphere,
> Which knows its heirship to the morning's light.
> He died to live,—the marble acclaims him here."

No, he could not perish! Nor will his living mate, whom we all honor this day, perish, while stands this monument of their genius. When we think how soon Richard M. Hunt's bronze bust will no longer look out upon his monumental work, known as the Lenox Library, well may we ask what work of architecture is abiding in this restless City of ours? Yet, doubtless we all feel that while Manhattan stands New York City will stand, and while New York City stands, this building will stand,—a monument to our municipality, as well as to the architects; a monument placed not in some reposeful spot, but here, amidst the City's incessant activities, with subway on one hand and elevated railway on the other, and also between those two great modern interstate railway stations, thus saying to all the world now and to future ages that this commercial capital of the nation has time for the culture of the mind, and has millions for this temple of wisdom.

Now, Mr. Mayor, fifth in succession of the Mayors of this City whose terms of office have been rendered, each and every one of them, noble by participation in the construction of this great library; I have the honor to announce that this building is finished, is ready for occupancy, and to hand to you its key.

ADDRESS BY THE HON. WILLIAM J. GAYNOR, MAYOR OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

It is now my duty, I am informed, to hand the key over to you, Mr. Bigelow, as Chairman of the Board of Trustees of this library corporation, which I do with much pleasure.

Venerable sir, you come down to us from former generations, and can therefore attest to all of us this day that mental growth and moral growth in mankind are things of gradual and slow growth. We need not be astonished at this, sir, because that is the process of God's economy applied to the whole universe. When we look about us to material things, wee see how slowly the tree grows and matures, how slowly even the grain of wheat grows and matures, and when we look at this human body of ours we see how slowly it grows and matures, and we may go further and remind ourselves how long—the ages and ages—the Almighty sat patiently brooding over this world before it was fit for our use. We have no reason to be discouraged that the growth, mental, moral and material, of good things is gradual and even slow, since that is the economy of the Almighty. It is for us in each generation to do our part, little or much, to keep that growth of the human race, mental and moral, moving forward all the time. We cannot do everything in one generation, much less in one day, as some of my good friends seem to think, but we can do our part while we are here and leave something to be done by those, Mr. Bigelow, who come after us; otherwise they would have nothing to do. The great agencies which bring about that gradual growth in the human race are the churches, the schools, an honest and intelligent public press, the administration of justice by the jury system, which De Tocqueville said was a free school always open, and last, but not least, the diffusion of knowledge by means of our public libraries. These forces being kept always alive and always at work, even though little by little, attrition upon attrition, day after day, finally I hope will bring the human race to that state of perfectibility or perfection which is the dream of all good souls.

With these remarks, Mr. Bigelow, I hand you this key of this public library, which is to do so much for the human race, for you to keep in your remaining years in office, and then to be handed down in succession to your successors, forever and ever.

ADDRESS BY THE HON. JOHN BIGELOW, PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

Mr. Mayor:

It is with an indescribable satisfaction that the Trustees of the New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundation, receive and accept from you as the official head of our municipal government, the palatial structure which it has so generously provided for their use.

They accept it as a work of art which will take rank with any other structure in the world consecrated chiefly to the edification of readers. In its equipment for such a use, I feel warranted also in saying that it has been surpassed by none.

Some six centuries ago the Cathedral of Notre Dame gave to France a standard in the department of Architecture which dove-like has so brooded over that and all other departments of art in France for the succeeding years that Paris has become not only the most attractive city in the world, but in proportion to its accommodations, the city of the world most economically built and maintained. Need we despair that before the lapse of another six hundred years, nay even before Albany and Troy become like the Bronx and Brooklyn only Boroughs of Greater New York, this Temple of Minerva in which we are assembled to-day may do as much for the Commercial Metropolis of America as Notre Dame has assisted in accomplishing for the Metropolis of France.

My hearers to-day have already heard that the library for which these munificent accommodations have been provided resulted from the consolidation of three other libraries that were already in existence and bore the names of the public spirited men by whom they were respectively endowed.

The first, that of Mr. Astor, incorporated in 1849, provided for a board of nine trustees, of which Washington Irving was the first and indeed for the remainder of his life, the only president, and appropriated $120,000 for the purchase of books, which in those days seemed, as it really was, a very generous provision.

This was the first free library ever established in New York. To illustrate the library poverty of our city in the decade of that century which the Astor Library was destined to distinguish, I may here mention an experience of my own. In the study of an article I was preparing for a magazine of the period I needed to consult a Greek authority, not strictly a classic. I could not find it in any book store nor in any private or public collection. The only copy to be found in this city or state was in the library of Columbia College, then flourishing in Warren Street long years before it was called to come up higher as a University to Morningside Heights.

Each of these consolidated libraries had been selected largely by competent scholars and at only what our judicial experts at Washington would term a "not unreasonable" expense. Mr. Astor availed himself largely of the services of Mr. Joseph G. Cogswell, then one of the ripest scholars in America, to prepare a list of the books required for the Library, and whom he sent to Europe to purchase them. Mr. Cogswell was kind enough to send me a copy of his list, by which I remember to have felt at the time much flattered. As far as I was capable of judging, his list covered very completely all such books as then no gentleman's library should be without.

The Library of Mr. Lenox was incorporated just twenty-one years later than Mr. Astor's, though he had already spent many years and much money in its collection, assisted greatly, however, by the invaluable services of the late Henry Stevens, than whom it would be difficult to name any person who better understood the commercial value of books and editions on both sides of the Atlantic. The price was rarely an obstacle to Mr. Lenox's purchase of any book he desired. He left besides to his executors $100,000, the income of which was to be used "in maintaining and increasing" his collection. As our three libraries were not consolidated until 1895, the Lenox Library profited for twenty-five years by the annual income of four or five thousand dollars, which of course added very largely to the value of the original endowment.

Mr. Tilden's library, though less voluminous than that of either of the other two, was probably not much less expensive, for he accumulated most of it at a period of his life when the price of anything he wanted rarely interfered with his getting possession of it—unless the Presidency was the exception.

The books of a free public library are not unlike the seeds of the sower who went out to sow. As he sowed, we are told, some of the seeds fell by the wayside and the birds came and devoured them; others fell upon the rocky places and the sun scorched them because they had no roots; others were choked by thorns; while some fell upon good ground and yielded fruit, some a hundred fold, some sixty and some thirty. The Library which is here opened to you and to the world today may be claimed to be a harvest from the seed that fell on good soil, and such as you will find in every way worthy of the monumental home which will help to perpetuate to future ages the munificence of its founders.

While Mr. Tilden was meditating the foundation of another public library in the city in which he had so greatly "prospered in his basket and his store," he told me one day that he had just received the annual report of the Boston Public Library, and he found that about 90% of the books taken from it during the year had been works of fiction. He asked me whether it was really worth his while to devote so much, or indeed, any money whatever, to fostering such an abnormal appetite for imaginative literature. I said to him in substance that probably the first printed writing that ever made a lodgment in his mind was the reading or hearing recited or sung the Melodies of Mother Goose;

that it never occurred to him then that there was any incongruity in

Hi diddle diddle
The cat's in the fiddle
The cow jumped over the moon, or in The dish that ran away with the spoon;

that he accepted every one of these statements with a faith that would have sustained him at the stake.

"Nonsense," as Charles Lamb very truly said, "is children's best sense." The real luxury of a printed book consists in the degree in which its contents are capable of interesting us. To create a genuine taste for that luxury therefore everyone must begin by reading what interests him, and imaginative literature is far more captivating to all people in whom a genuine taste for printed literature has not yet been formed. The ploughman, the tinker, the miner, the woodchopper, whose eyes do not readily catch the meaning of books of a high order of literary merit, when he joins his family at night wants to read what will entertain them most and fatigue him least. That is what he is more sure to find in imaginative than in any other kind of literature. The appetite for better books will always grow however by what it most enjoys feeding on, and no one feeds long on Mother Goose.

I am not sure that what I said had any influence upon Mr. Tilden's judgment, but we may congratulate ourselves that the forementioned report of the Boston Public Library did not eliminate the 35th Clause from his Will. It required a decision of our Court of Appeals, by a majority of but one, to do that,—a strange coincidence with his failure to succeed General Grant to the Presidency of the United States in 1877 for the lack of just one electoral vote.

And now, Mr. Mayor, allow me to congratulate you upon your signal privilege of being the Chief Magistrate of our City not only during an important stage of its progress, but especially at the completion of this temple of learning.

Let me congratulate you also upon the presence here to-day of one of your distinguished predecessors, for his loyal coöperation in the erection of this edifice and who enjoyed the memorable distinction of laying its corner stone.

Yet again I congratulate you, Mr. Mayor, and the fellow citizens who are our guests, upon the presence here to-day of the Governor of our State, which also makes us mindful of his immediate predecessor, now in foreign lands, whose powerful arm was always raised for our encouragement when it was needed.

And now let us all, Trustees, Mayors, Governors, and Assembled Guests, congratulate one another upon the honor of having with us to-day his Excellency the President of the United States. His presence recognizes and proclaims the national importance and scope of the institution he is dignifying to-day; nor is that all, it expands the orbit of its influence, in respectful imitation of the sun, embracing and enlightening the world, in making Bryant Park "the Mecca of the Mind," and this noble temple a Pilgrims' Shrine for the scholars of all the Nations.

ADDRESS BY THE HON. JOHN A. DIX, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is with peculiar pleasure and interest that I join with you in the dedication of this noble building, not only for what it is in itself, and what it is to do, but because I have seen recently the great library of this State go up in flames and smoke, I suspect that the officers of the Educational Department will say that it is well I should be here to-day that I may have a convincing demonstration of the importance and the vastness of a public library, and cultivate a keen sense of the need of the money necessary to lay even the foundation for a library that will be worthy the greatness of the Empire State.

The public library is now more than a collection of books. It is a generator of culture and of intellectual and moral energy. It used to serve scholars. Now it serves all the people. The old library waited for the people to come to it; the new library goes to them. It meets the timid cordially. It studies the wants of the people and supplies them. It knows that intellectual tastes have to be cultivated and it fosters them. The literature of every profession and of almost every subject has outgrown the means of individuals, but the well-organized public library puts a world of knowledge of every subject so within the reach of all, that anyone who will search without bias may be able to say almost the last word on any theme.

The splendid structure that is to-day formally opened to the use of all the people is a suitable and fitting home for the library which it shelters. It will become the pulsating heart of the city's intellectual activities, not only because it will contain the rich collections which have been and will be gathered, but also because it will have the atmosphere and the spirit that will attract all searchers for knowledge and an organization and an experience that will respond to the needs of the city before they have become apparent to people other than those whose business it is to promote knowledge and culture and to equip and manage libraries.

This magnificent building, this public library, will be called upon to meet the needs of keener and more complex activities than are manifest in any other city in the world. I have every confidence that it will fulfill its high mission in a way worthy of the great men whose fortunes laid the foundations and will merit the further aid of other men with liberal fortunes, as well as the good will and the support of all the people of the great city which possesses such a priceless treasure.

ADDRESS BY THE HON. WILLIAM H. TAFT, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

My Fellow-citizens:

This day crowns a work of National importance. The dedication of this beautiful structure for the spread of knowledge among the people marks not only the consummation of a noteworthy plan for bringing within the grasp of the humblest and poorest citizen the opportunity for acquiring information on every subject of every kind, but it furnishes a model and example for other cities which have been struggling with the same problem, and points for them the true way.

The accumulation of books, however valuable, however rare, however numerous, in a single Library, without facilities for their consultation, examination and distribution, is like deposits of great veins of valuable minerals in the earth, known to be there, but without the mines and the transportation needed to make the materials available for the use of men.

It is not in the treasures of the various collections that go to make up this Library that its chief value consists, wonderful as those are, and much as we are indebted to the Astors and James Lenox for the money, labor and pains expended in their gathering. It is not in the number of volumes or pamphlets or manuscripts that this Library stands out first in the world, for I believe, considered from that standpoint, it is only sixth or seventh the greatest collection; but it is in the facility of circulation and in the immense number of books that are distributed each year for use to the citizens and residents of New York and vicinity, that this Library easily takes the first rank.

The completion of this building gives outward and substantial evidence of the perfection of the project. When the story is told of how this great organization was effected, it is hardly credible. The Astor Library, founded in 1849, and begun and enriched by the generosity of three generations of the Astor family, was only a library of reference, consisting of rare historical books, pamphlets and manuscripts. The Lenox Library, made possible through the generosity and infinite pains and labor and love of James Lenox, gave to this Foundation a precious biblical collection, and a wonderful library of American history. The Tilden Foundation brought a valuable library of 16,000 volumes and a foundation of $2,000,000. The generosity of these founders of course is much to be praised. So too the generosity of those who contributed to the New York Public Circulating Library and to the various circulating libraries that are now made a part of this; and so too must we applaud the generosity of Andrew Carnegie, whose munificence will provide for sixty branches in all parts of this great city. But after reading the history of these various collections and circulating libraries, the fact that impresses itself most upon me, that stands out in the history of the whole movement, is that in the short time since 1895 master minds have conceived the union of all these agencies into one, by which the possible benefit for the individual contained in each is now distributed and brought within the easy and beneficial use of every New Yorker.

A Library which affords constant reference and reading room facilities to 1700 people and which circulates through sixty branches its books, at the rate of 8,000,000 a year, accomplishes so much more in the popular dissemination of knowledge than any other library in the world, that the men who conceived the plan and who had the energy, tact, patience and knowledge with which to execute it, are those whom I would congratulate to-day. It is to the Librarian and the Trustees of those various Foundations that I would convey my personal felicitations. Every one who has had to deal with human nature knows the difficulty of securing from those who are independent in control of any organization, however large or small, a willingness to subordinate their own importance and their own freedom by a union of that which is in their custody, with similar trusts in the custody of others, even in order to render all the trusts more effective in the accomplishment of their original purpose. To have secured the consent of all the Trustees of the various Foundations, to have obtained the necessary legislation authorizing the union, to have secured from the city authorities the use of this magnificent site, and the appropriation of the money for this magnificent structure, required genius and statesmanship, and marks this day as noteworthy, not only because of the expanding usefulness to the people of this Library, but also as commemorating a most remarkable success of disinterested human effort in the cause of philanthropy.

BENEDICTION BY HIS GRACE, THE MOST REVEREND JOHN MURPHY FARLEY, D.D., ARCHBISHOP OF NEW YORK

May the blessing of Almighty God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, descend upon all who are assembled here to-day and abide with them forever, and upon all who will labor or live within this building, that they may be inspired to devote all their thoughts and study to the honor and glory of God and the eternal salvation of their own and their neighbors' souls. In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

---

After the benediction, the building was inspected by those who had been present at the ceremonies.

From four to six o'clock P. M. a general reception was held, which was attended by several thousand persons who had been invited by the Trustees to visit the building.

On the following morning, Wednesday, May 24, 1911, at nine o'clock, the building was thrown open for the general use of the public.

THE LIBRARY SCHOOL OF THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

At the meeting of the trustees on May 10 it was announced that Mr. Carnegie had agreed to give $15,000 yearly for the next five years for a library school to be conducted by the New York Public Library. Miss Mary W. Plummer, former librarian of Pratt Institute and now director of the Pratt Institute library school, has been appointed principal.

Admission to the school will be chiefly by examination but exception will be made in the case of college graduates whose studies and success in them seem to warrant such exception. Entrance examinations will be held on September 8, and school work will begin in October. The second year will be divided into three terms, and the tuition fee will be $15 per term for students whose homes are within the metropolitan district, $25 per term for others.

For the first year the course of study will be that of most one year library schools, and a certificate will be granted at the end of the year for satisfactory work. To recommended certificate holders will be offered a second year of paid practice with some instruction in the shape of lectures for which no fee will be charged, and satisfactory work for this year will be rewarded by a diploma.

The school is established to provide the New York Public Library with trained assistants and also to fit for library positions elsewhere suitable candidates who do not care to reside in New York.

During the summer vacation the Principal or her representative will be in the school office in the central building (room 75) to interview applicants and to give information to enquirers.

The most important gift of the month was a collection of 428 works relating to penmanship, school copy books, and similar material on the history of hand writing, brought together by George H. Shattuck of Medina, New York, and by him presented to the library. The titles range in date from 1659 to recent years and cover very fully the period after 1850, the latter date marking approximately the change from manuscript copy books prepared by the individual teacher to engraved books issued by publishers.

Other gifts received during the month and worthy of mention came from the following: T. Astley Atkins, "The manor of Philipsburgh, a paper by... T. Astley Atkins, Yonkers Historical and Library Association," 1894; A. Berry, "Afrika dets opdagelse, erobring og kolonisation, populaert fremstillet ved Daniel Bruun," two volumes, København, 1901; the Boston Symphony Orchestra, a bound volume of the programmes of the thirtieth season, 1910-11; Edward Bote and G. Bock, one volume and five pamphlets, all instrumental music; Charity Organization Society of Newport, twenty-eight pamphlets, annual reports of the Society; Mrs. Clark, thirteen volumes, theosophical publications by Annie Besant and C. W. Leadbeater; Cooper Union, 1,327 volumes of documents, periodicals, etc.; Edgar William Cox, "A history of the Troy Citizens Corps," Troy, N. Y., by Harry P. Judson, Troy, 1884; Moreau Delano, "The records of the Federal Convention of 1787," edited by Max Farrand, three volumes, New Haven, 1911; Chauncey M. Depew, his "Orations, addresses and speeches," edited by John Denison Champlin and privately printed at New York, 1910, eight volumes; Dr. Alexander Duane, 233 volumes and three pamphlets, public documents, reports, etc.; Thomas L. Elder, four pamphlets relating to numismatics; Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, seven volumes and fifty-nine pamphlets, relating chiefly to peace conferences; Mr. and Mrs. John T. Fisher, a copy of "Civitatum et Admirandorum Italiae Pars Altera; in qua Urbis Romae Admiranda aevi veteris & hujus seculi continentur," Amstelaedami, 1663; Ford, Bacon & Davis, "Pensylvania State Railroad Commission in the matter of the complaints against the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. Report to the Commission by Ford, Bacon & Davis, March 7, 1911," two volumes; R. S. Guernsey, a manuscript "List of the titles of all the law books published in the English language in England and America from the earliest times up to 1875," on cards; R. A. Gunn, "Bruce Douglas, a man of the people, a novel," by Robert A. Gunn, Boston, 1909; William Carew Hazlitt, "The Hazlitts, an account of their origin and descent, with autobiographical particulars of William Hazlitt (1778-1830)," Edinburgh, 1911; Robert Hewitt, "Herculanum et Pompéi, recueil général des peintures, bronzes, mosaïques, etc...et reproduits...par H. Roux, Ainé," Paris, 1875, six volumes; Kobe Foreign Board of Trade, three pamphlets "Proceedings...with, reports upon the trade of Kobe and Osaka and articles of association," 1907, 1908, 1909; William Lamont, one pamphlet, "The Lamont Tartan, an address delivered to the Clan Lamont Society at their annual general meeting in Glasgow on 6th May, 1910," by William Lamont, C.A.; Long Island Historical Society, 249 volumes and 262 pamphlets, documents, reports, the Holy Bible in type for the blind, etc.; Mrs. Ida M. Nungasser, "Israel Lo Ammi, a Twentieth Century narrative," N. Y., [c. 1910], by herself; Bishop Rachel,

"The Word in Arabic," (1905-1910), six volumes, edited by himself; Ameen F. Rihani, "Ar-Rihanyyat," (Arabic), a collection of essays, addresses and free verse by himself, published in Beyrut, Syria, in two volumes; the Roumanian Minister of Public Instruction, thirteen volumes and sixteen pamphlets, all public documents of Roumania; Mrs. Russell Sage, seven volumes, genealogical publications; Dr. James J. Walsh, his "The Popes and science," Knights of Columbus edition, New York, 1911; Western Electric Company, seventy volumes of engineering periodicals; and the Estate of Thomas Windsor, eleven volumes, seven pamphlets, etc., including works on fencing, in English and French, illustrated by Rowlandson, Cruikshank, and others.

Report states: "The annual returns of commitments, convictions and executions, first procured by addresses from this House [Commons] and since required by statute, go no farther back than 1805." To supply their need of information as to earlier years, the committee caused similar tables to be compiled from such county records as were available, and these appear in the appendix as items 4–26.

1. A statement of the number of persons charged with criminal offences, who were committed to the different gaols in England and Wales for trial... from the year 1805 to the year 1818, both inclusive... p. 125-134.
2. A statement of the number of persons who were capitally convicted, and of those who were executed, in London and Middlesex, from the year 1749 to the year 1818, both inclusive... p. 135–139.
3. A statement of the number of persons charged with criminal offences who were committed to the different gaols in the cities of London and Westminster and county of Middlesex, for trial during the last seven years [1812–18]... p. 140–145.
4. A statement of the number of persons who were capitally convicted and of those who were executed, in London, from the year 1699 to the year 1755, both inclusive... p. 146–151.
5. Same, London and Middlesex, 1755 to 1804. p. 152–163.
6. An account of the gross number of commitments and of the capital convictions and executions, on the Home circuit, 1689–1718... p. 164–167.
7. Same, 1755–1784. p. 168–171.
8. Same, 1785–1814. p. 172–175.

New York City

The New York city police department was established by act of May 7, 1844. By act of April 15, 1857, establishing the metropolitan police district control of the police was put in the hands of the state. Control of the police was given back to the city by act of April 5, 1870 entitled "An act to reorganize the local government of the city."

NATHANAEL GREENE TO SAMUEL ADAMS ON AMERICAN AFFAIRS IN 1777.

Printed from the original manuscript in The New York Public Library.

Middle Brook May 28 1777

Dear Sir

I was honoured with a letter from you some days since. I have not the letter here it is with my Papers back in the Country. I observe your remarks respecting Hannibals Situation, and the comparison you draw between Hannibal & General Howe the State of Carthage & that of Great Britain the state of Fabius & that of General Washington. I am sensible the difference betwixt the State of Hannibal & General Howe is very great the faction of Hanno, distrest Hannibal but General Howe receives all the aid and support that Great Britain can give, but the difference is not so great as to warrant the Generals takeing a resolution to attack the troops at Brunswick—fortified with an inferior number and those undeciplind
I agree with you it is the business of the Army to fight, the temper and disposition of the people at large require it, the unsettled state of the Empire the powers of government not being fully acknowledged and many wishing to give a stop to the powers of Congress and the present modes of Government in the different States. The unsettled State that Government is in throughout the Congress is the strongest argument for fighting that can be given as the hands of Administration will be strengthened in proportion to the success of the Army. Altho I am not fond of fighting, I am ever ready when commanded. I hope soon to give the Enemy an opportunity to fight if they please we insult them dayly—but they keep close within their lines. I still think the Enemy will operate to the Southward. Philadelphia seems to be their principal Object. it is said by a Person out of Brunswick last Night that the Baggage of General Howe is puting on board a Transport Seventy Sail of Transports are fited to receive Troops—a few days will further explain the mystical proceedings of General Howe. but give me leave to tell you he never will have another opportunity to injure America as he had this Spring.

Mr. Merchant one of the Delagates for the State of Rhode Island will deliver you this. I hope he will be agreeable to Congress he is a man of good understanding & activity—he has a great Zeal for the cause and I hope he will be useful in Congress.

With love & esteem I am dear Sir your Obedi ent Serv & Nath Greene

In the Parliamentary Papers these reports appear as House of commons documents brought from the Lords, and have individual Roman pagination; the minutes of evidence are Lords documents and are continuously paged, and the same is true of the appendices. The 4th and 5th reports appeared with a single title-page.

The appendices consist of papers relating to the various penal institutions, mainly rules and regulations, local statistics, and answers from officials to queries sent out by the committee respecting prison conditions and discipline. The following exceptions to this general rule may be noted:

Appendix to 1st report:

no. 13. Extracts relative to gaols from [1st] report and appendix [parts 1-2] to report on municipal corporations [by the commissioners appointed to inquire into the municipal corporations of England and Wales, 1835]. p. 151-169.

Appendix to 2d report:

Williams, two pamphlets, "Genealogy of the Shethar family," New York, 1904, and "John Kean of the Continental Congress from South Carolina," by C. S. Williams, typewritten manuscript, bound.

From Messrs. D. Appleton and Company the Library received a portrait of Herbert Spencer, painted in oil in 1872 by Mr. J. B. Burgess (then A. R. A., later R. A.), when Mr. Spencer was fifty-two years of age and at the height of his mental and physical vigor. The picture was painted at the request of Mr. William H. Appleton, with the understanding that it was to be given to some New York institution for permanent exhibition. The portrait was so satisfactory to Mr. Spencer that a replica of it was made for him by Mr. Burgess, and by him bequeathed to the National Portrait Gallery in London.

The water color paintings of Old testament scenes by Tissot, presented to the Library by Mr. Jacob Schiff and on exhibition in the central building since May, were withdrawn in October and distributed to twenty circulation branches, about eighteen pieces going to each branch.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees held November 8, 1911, Hon. George L. Rives was elected second vice-president to succeed the late John S. Kennedy.

MILLBANK PRISON

The penitentiary system of imprisonment was first authorized in an act of 1779 (19 Geo. III., c. 74) drawn up under the direction of Sir William Blackstone, with the advice and concurrence of John Howard. No further steps were taken, however, until 1794, when an act was passed (34 Geo. III., c.74) for the building of a penitentiary, and a contract was entered into with Jeremy Bentham for that purpose. This plan also was abandoned. In 1811 the committee on the laws relating to penitentiary houses reported upon the merits of the question; not long thereafter the general penitentiary at Millbank was begun, and in June 1816 a part of the building was opened for the reception of convicts. Reports 1818, 1820-1821 called: Papers relating to the general penitentiary at Millbank...Report, etc.

Report of William Crawford, Esq., on the penitentiaries of the United States, addressed to His Majesty's principal secretary of state for the home department. [Dated 1st Aug. 1834] Ordered... to be printed, 11 Aug. 1834. n. t.-p. [London, 1834] 56, 229 p., 18 plans. f°. (Gt. Br. Parlt. Papers. 1834, v. 46.)  SDD

Crawford visited penitentiaries in the following states: Me., N. H., Vt., Mass., Conn., N. Y., N. J., Pa., Md., Va., Ky., Tenn., O., Ind., and in the Dist. of Columbia. Ga. and Ill. had penitentiaries which he did not visit; the other states at that time had none.

The conclusions drawn in the report were generally unfavorable to the penal methods then existing in America, except as regards the solitary system in vogue in the Eastern Pennsylvania Penitentiary. The appendix contains description and plan of each prison

Pennypacker, his "The desecration and profanation of the Pennsylvania Capitol," Philadelphia [1911];

Saarbrücken, the "Bericht," 1910/1; Alfred A. Thom, one volume and one pamphlet, relating to interstate commerce matters.

From the 15th through the 28th of November the general exhibition room was given over to a display of work of members of the Society of Illustrators; this was the second exhibition of the society and attracted a large number of visitors.

The exhibition of modern etchings from the S. P. Avery collection on view in the print exhibition room during the summer was replaced about November 20 by a loan collection of French engraved portraits of the seventeenth century, by Morin, Mellan, Nanteuil, Masson, and others. These prints, besides their artistic and technical interest, mirror the spirit of the period in a series of character studies of noteworthy individuals. The plates from Lessing's work on textiles and the Liszt exhibit, both in the Stuart gallery, and the Bryant exhibit in the Exhibition room, remained on view.

LIST OF WORKS IN THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY RELATING TO WITCHCRAFT IN EUROPE

Compiled by George F. Black

A list of works in the New York Public Library relating to Witchcraft in the United States was published in 1908 in the Library Bulletin, v. 12, p. 658-675.

A., C. K. Recovery of a long lost document—Mr. George L. Burr's fortunate search. A sixteenth century protest against Witchcraft; the fortunes of Cornelius Loos. [Clippings from the New York Evening Post, Nov. 13, 1886]

Acts and statutes of the Lawting, sheriff, and justice courts within Orkney and Shetland, 1602-1644. (Maitland Club. Miscellany. v. 2, p. 137-216. Edinburgh, 1840. 4°.)

Trial of Jonet Drever and Katherine Bigland for witchcraft, 1615, p. 167-168; trial of Elspeth Reoch, 1616, p. 187-191. Reprinted by G. F. Black, Examples of printed folk-lore concerning the Orkney and Shetland Islands, p. 72-74, 111-115. London, 1903.

Ady, Thomas. A candle in the dark; or, a treatise concerning the nature of Witches & Witchcraft: Being advice to Judges, sheriffes, Justices of the peace, and Grand-Jury-men, what to do, before they passe sentence on such as are arraigned for their lives as Witches... London: Printed for R. I., 1656. Title 1 l., The reasons of the book (2) p., errata (1) p., Text 164 p. (wrongly numbered 172. The pagination jumps from 152 to 161.)

Nothing is known of the author of this able refutation of the arguments of witchmongers and witchfinders.

—— A perfect discovery of Witches. Shewing the divine cause of the distractions of this kingdome, and also of the Christian world... Very profitable to bee read by all sorts of people, especially judges of assizes, sheriffes, justices of the peace, and grand-jury-men, before they passe sentence on those that are condemned for Witch-craft. London: Printed for R. I., 1661. Title 1 l., The reasons (2) p., errata (1) p., Text 164 p. (wrongly numbered 172.)

Simply another issue of the sheets of A candle in the dark, with a new title-page.

Urban Grandier, a priest, was accused by the Ursuline nuns of Loudun of having exercised diabolical powers upon them. At his trial two documents were produced—one signed by Grandier binding himself to the Devil, the other bears the signatures of six devils and is witnessed by Baalbarith, the Devil's secretary. The documents are given in fac-simile by Scheible.

Newes from Scotland, declaring the damnable life of Doctor Fian a notable sorcerer, who was burned at Edenbrough, in Januarie last 1591; which doctor was register to the Deuill, that sundrie times preached at North Barricke Kirke to a number of notorious Witches; with the true examinations of the said doctor and Witches, as they uttered them in the presence of the Scottish king: discouering how they pretented to bewitch and drowne his majestie in the sea, comming from Denmarke; with such other wonderfull matters, as the like hath not bin heard at anie time. Published according to the Scottish coppie. [At London:] Printed for William Wright. (In: Ancient Criminal trials in Scotland... v. 1, p. 213-223. Edinburgh, 1833. 4°.)

The authorship of this blood-curdling tract has been doubtfully attributed to Rev. James Carmichael, minister of Haddington (1568-1628). Notwithstanding the statement that this edition was "published according to the Scottish coppie" it is more probable that Wright's was the first edition.

"In the title-page of this drama the name of Dekker is placed between those of his coadjutors, Rowley and Ford. It seems to have been a trick of the trade, in their distress, to accumulate a number of names in the title-page, to catch as many readers as possible; and Rowley's was deservedly a very marketable name. Not content with the trio, they added an '&c.' With these we need not meddle, and we may venture to dismiss Rowley with the allowance of an occasional passage, since the drama seems fairly to divide itself between the other two, whose style is well understood, and here strongly marked."—Dyce, Ford's Works, v. 3, p. 271.

Scot, Reginald. The discovery of Witchcraft: proving that the compacts and contracts of Witches with devils and all infernal spirits or familiars, are but erroneous novelties and imaginary conceptions. Also discovering, how far their power extendeth in killing, tormenting, consuming, or curing the bodies of men, women, children, or animals, by charms, philtres, periapts, pentacles, curses, and conjurations. Wherein likewise the unchristian practices and inhumane dealings of searchers and Witch-tryers upon aged, melancholly, and superstitious people, in extorting confessions by terrors and tortures, and in devising false marks and symptoms, are notably detected... In sixteen books... Whereunto is added An excellent discourse of the nature and substance of devils and spirits, in two books: the first by the aforesaid author: the second now added in this third edition... London: Printed for A. Clark, 1665. 9 l., 292 p., 7 l., 72(1) p. 3. ed. f°.

The "discourse concerning the nature and substance of devils and spirits" has separate title-page and pagination.

The first edition of this famous work was published in 1584, and is now very rare. King James I. of England ordered all the copies that could be found to be burned and asserted that he wrote his Demonologie "chiefly against the damnable opinions of Wierus and Scot."

For an account of the work see Booklore, v. 4, p. 39–41, London, 1886. A much earlier account of Scot's work appears in The British Librarian...1738, p. 213–228, London, 1738. 8°.

The contents of the second book of the Discourse of the nature and substance of devils and spirits is quite incongruous with the nature of the original work. It is the compilation of an adept in the Black Art, a person of totally different opinions from Scot.
